Having his cake and...

CARMEL MAYOR Clint Eastwood cuts the city of Carmel's three-tier 70th birthday cake with a saber during ceremonies held Friday at Carpenter Hall at Sunset Center. The cake-cutting was accompanied by the singing of Happy Birthday in the jam-packed hall festooned with balloons and streamers and a vast array of food and drinks donated by local merchants. A Dixieland band provided the entertainment for the throng, which also included current and former city officials. The ceremony was preceded by a Halloween parade downtown and capped a week-long celebration that began Sunday with an oldtimers breakfast at Outdoor Forest Theater. (Holly McFarland photo.)

Trouble in paradise?

Foes of Eastwood administration speak out

By DAVID LELAND

SOME HAVE called these citizens the "loyal opposition," while others have labeled them sour grapes — but the people who are not content with the present administration's policies simply call themselves concerned residents.

'I would much prefer to be a team member,' says City Councilman James Wright, referring to his lone wolf status. 'But I've come to realize that that is not going to happen.'

This is not to say the discontented are banding together in a cohesive group, readying themselves for a march on city hall. Instead, they perceive Carmel as a changing entity which is not consistent with the majority's wants and needs.

The opponents of the present administration say these worries are most evident during city council meetings and the general plan committee's current recommendations to allow less restrictions on some parts of the business community.

"You take all the aspects together and it's a disturbing course of events," said Howard Nieman, a financial investor who voted for Mayor Clint Eastwood in the past election.

Nieman pointed to the aggressive tactics Eastwood uses to get his way within city council meetings, which, he says, most times affect only a small number of businesspeople.

He said the most recent example of this came at the Oct. 7 city council meeting, when the council granted the Little family a permit to include 3,000 square feet of office space on the second story of what will be the new Sands Motel.

This request had been repeatedly denied during the past five years, Nieman said. But the council (with the exception of Councilman Jim Wright) overrode possible adverse impacts to Carmel, such as increased parking problems, to allow the permit.

"He uses his gavel like a gun," Nieman said.

Indeed, the Eastwood administration has been noted for its expedient method of bringing legislation before the city council and getting approval, especially those regarding business permits.

"Some of us thank God for the water moratorium," said Jane Mayer, former general plan committee chairwoman. "We've got a lid on this (development) at least for now."

This so-called "strong arm" justice is not always met with the unanimous approval of residents or fellow councilmembers, especially Wright, the only councilmember who served with the previous administration. For Wright, the city council meetings often are an exercise in futility — he has voted against the majority so often that some fellow councilmembers have taken to calling him "Dr. No."

But Wright remains positive and says he will not be pressured into giving up his post.

Quitting is not an option, he said, and he will fulfill his commitment to Carmel and its voters "until my time is up (in 1988)."

"I would much prefer to be a team member," he said, referring to his lone wolf status. "But I've come to realize that that is not going to happen."

Wright said the only time the council does not use "block voting" is when the issue does not involve the business community versus residential views, as with the Beach Restoration Project or the Harrison Memorial Library Annex. For the most part, however, Wright is often the only dissenter.

"I can't persuade them (the city council) to take a position," he said. "I'm pretty sure they all have a good understanding how they are going to vote before they come to the meeting — that's not going to change."

This was recently illustrated by the appointment of Bob Evans to fill the council seat vacated by Helen Arnold's death.

Evans, during his tenure as chairman of the city's general plan committee, has demonstrated many policies which fall in line

Thanks for 70th birthday

Dear Editor:

I wish to thank each and every merchant who made a contribution to the city's 70th birthday celebration. You can be proud that both the children and adult parties were tremendous successes due, in large part, to your generosity.

Thank you and I look forward to the 71st celebration.

What, no pizza?

Dear Editor:

Having been employed on Ocean Avenue in Carmel during the past 15 years, I was delighted when Wishart's began offering bakery pizza as a luncheon alternative. There are few places that a working person can get a quick and light lunch in Carmel. Wishart's pizza was indeed a service to the working community. Many of my co-workers and I bought Wishart's pizza and enjoyed it while relaxing in the park.

Pizza has become a bakery item throughout Europe and in many bakeries in the U.S. Since Carmel prides itself on being a European environment, perhaps our city council should foster that feeling by encouraging quality bakery products such as Wishart's pizza.

I am greatly disappointed that Wishart's Bakery may no longer sell their delicious pizza.

In praise of cones

Dear Editor:

Hurrah! Hallelujah! Eureka! Praise the Lord and pass the ice cream cones.

Not satisfied with having some of the most talented musicians, artists and writers living here, a benign climate and scenery the envy of much of the world, plus fascinating history, Carmel wanted ice cream cones.

Though in the middle 70s and not having eaten an ice cream cone since I was 10, I realize that my life has been a desert.

Congratulations Carmel for having achieved the highest obtainable peak of dignity and civilization.

Now, how about a few parking places?

The teacher is the key

Dear Editor:

I wish to congratulate Karl Pallastrini, Carmel Middle School principal for his excellent article in the Oct. 9 issue.

How fortunate to have a principal who values the teacher as the most important ingredient in the process of "monitoring and assisting" the child to adjust to the program prepared for the young adult. The program will help the student to be more independent. (This will help the student adjust easily to his work in high school.)

Wise words: Credentialing and training should complement the philosophy of providing a transitional education program — the teacher is the KEY!

We as citizens of Carmel need publications (of this kind) about our educational system. Thank you, Karl Pallastrini!

Cultural highlight

Dear Editor:

I was among the group of people who were fortunate enough to attend the opening ceremonies of the current exhibit at the Cherry Foundation, Fourth and Guadalupe, Carmel, and want to express my gratitude, in the name of the Friends of C.G. Jung, for the truly splendid collection of paintings being shown there.

All who attended must have experienced new relationships to the collective unconscious last Sunday afternoon. Our guide was artist Jeanne D'Orge (Mrs. Cherry), whose paintings comprise the permanent exhibit of the foundation. Clearly, this woman had an extraordinary connection to the archetypal depths of the unconscious. I feel sure that Jung himself would have been moved and profoundly impressed.

All of us were held in thrall by the paintings. The setting was ideal, and warm music helped maintain a mood of quiet introspection. Marilyn Sanders, president of the Friends of the Cherry Foundation, asked us to select a favorite painting and to view it intently for 8 minutes, while Majorie Wurzmann, Robin Keeler and Amy Krupski provided suitable music. Afterwards, several of us shared the feelings and thoughts we experienced while viewing our favorite painting.

This must be counted a distinct highlight in the cultural calendar of Carmel. I am writing this letter to encourage Mrs. Sanders and her enthusiastic colleagues to expand the offerings of the foundation. It is a charming facility, and deserves the wholehearted support of the whole community.

Bombardiers sought

Dear Editor:

Not many people today realize that World War II gave birth to a flying specialty that today is almost non-existent. Bombardiering, or bomb-aiming as some refer to this combat crew function, is barely visible today in the highly skilled procedures of the modern aircrew.

The functional responsibility is a deeply hidden, additional duty of the crew navigator in today's Air Force. Even with the concession that "bombs are dropped" from the modern aircraft, there is little or no visual target sighting used in the process. Radar pulses and electronic wizardry poke unseen holes in the sky and compute and execute weapon release miles from a target. This is to be compared to the bomb drop of the World War II bomber where the entire success of the mission depended primarily upon the eye-hand coordination and skill of the bombardier as he took the aircraft on the bomb run!

During WWII there were some 45,000 young men trained as bombardiers at 14 Army Air Fields. An estimated 15,000 to 20,000 ex-bombardiers survive, according to best estimates.

Today there is an association of bombardiers of WWII identified simply as Bombardiers, Inc. This group seeks to identify and unite those who were associated with the training of the bomb-aimers as well as the actual bombardier. At this writing, some 3,800 have been identified. Many remain to be contacted.

The second reunion of this rapidly-becoming-extinct group is to be held March 26-29 in San Antonio, Texas. All former bombardiers, as well as others interested, are urged to contact the organization at Box 254, Eagle Harbor, MI 49951 for further details.

A priceless gift

Dear Editor:

I would like to suggest to all children and teenagers who are thinking about trying drugs or alcohol that they first look around at some other kids. Perhaps they should talk to some handicapped children — like the 15-year-old with cystic fibrosis who endures two hours of painful therapy each day just to be able to breathe — or the kid with learning disabilities who has to struggle to learn and has to put twice as much effort into getting through his school classes as a "normal" kid.

Talk to the child with cancer, whose days are numbered and who won't be taking "recreational" drugs, but will be taking chemo-therapy with its awful side effects. Talk to the 19-year-old in a wheelchair, who has cerebral palsy and who can barely speak and who moves constantly and awkwardly, but who writes: "Will any girl ever love me, will I ever be able to hold a girl in my arms — will anyone ever realize I am a man with the same needs and feelings as any other man?"

Talk to these people who would give anything for the gift of a healthy mind and body — and ask their opinion about trying to damage both with a "fun" drug. Realize, before it is too late, that is it a priceless gift to have good health — and all your arms and legs and a complete brain. Value them before it is too late.

Foxes in the hen house

Dear Editor:

When Canada wanted to exhibit a film in the USA that showed the effect of acid rain in the northern forests, the administration banned it as "propaganda." Now of course we know differently.

In a more recent case, U.S. filmmakers wanted to export documentary films with anti-nuclear environmental and other themes, but were stopped by the U.S. Information Agency. A federal judge sided with the filmmakers against this censorship. Who is not against nuclear warfare and who can be against protecting our environment? It will be interesting to watch the outcome of this case.

This administration has a miserable environmental record. Out of his own head, our president figured out that "trees cause pollution" and that "when you've seen one redwood you've seen them all." Now we're trying desperately to save the last of the giant redwoods, some said to be from 1000 to 5000 years old.

Robert Burford, who was a leader in the fight to destroy the Bureau of Land Management was named director of BLM. You talk about foxes in the hen house!

John Crowell, general counsel for Louisiana Pacific Corp., one of the largest timber-cutters in the national forests, was named Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, which involves control of the Forest Service.

We know about Ann Burford, Rita Lavelle and James Watt, all gone now, thank goodness. Surely we can do better than this.

Harmful to society

Dear Editor:

The current proliferation of violent crime is a complex social problem. One cause is that the perpetrators know in advance that the probability of harsh punishment is low.

Our present state Supreme Court has set a consistent pattern of leniency toward those who commit crimes of violence. This naturally affects the actions of the lower courts as well. Thus we have sunk into a state of indulgence toward criminals which lacks adequate deterrent effect. Worse, this tolerance releases many of these dangerous people to repeat their crimes again and again.

I urge a "no" vote on Justices Bird, Reynoso and Grodin. In my opinion their philosophy and policies are harmful to society.

Cost of library annex takes a $330,000 jump

By DAVID LELAND

THE CITY Council Tuesday entered into an agreement with architects for a design of the underground garage for the proposed Harrison Memorial Library Annex, but also received news that the annex could cost $330,000 more than expected.

It was explained to the council at its Nov. 4 meeting that the only way to realize the true cost of the underground parking garage at Lincoln Street and Sixth Avenue is to go ahead with the drawings and a model, which will portray a new concept for the building.

The council, for the most part, was somewhat taken back by the newest figures for the project, which have been boosted $338,000 since the council gave its go-ahead for the project in August. The total cost of the underground parking garage now stands at $1,568,800, according to Doug Schmitz, city administrator.

But Schmitz said that the figure can probably be brought down after the design has been made and costs put in better perspective.

The change in the project initially involved the Pine Inn, whom the city is in partnership with on the underground parking garage project. The Pine Inn granted the city use to its "air rights" above the garage which will house the library annex. This permits the annex to expand westward and to be reduced from a two-story structure to a one-story building. It will also not be limited to the property lines of city-owned lots.

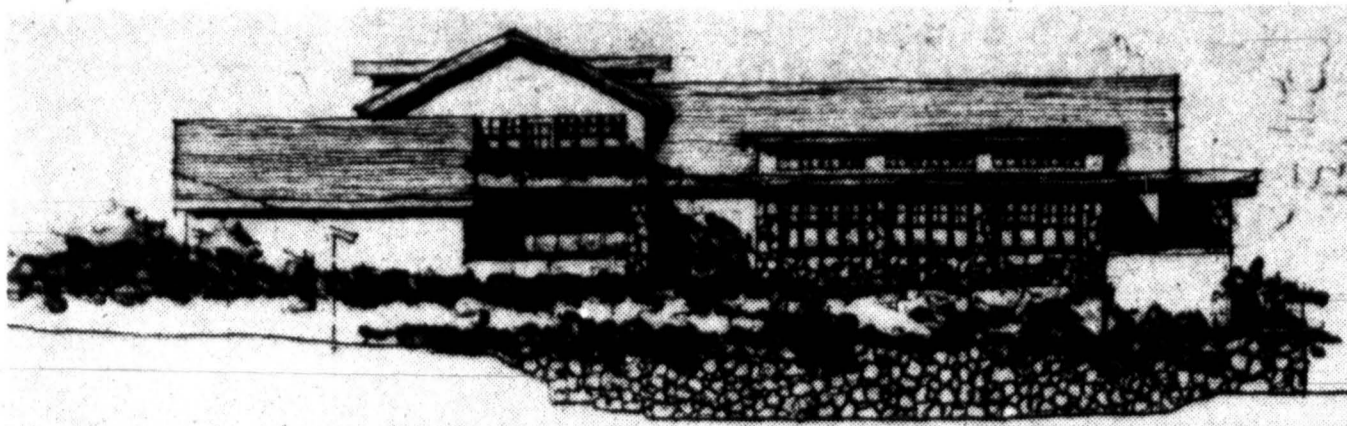

The catch is that this utilization of up to 3,000 more square feet needs more stringent support systems — the garage needs to be reinforced to accommodate the added weight.

In adopting the resolution, the council found itself in the position of having to move forward on the issue or abandon it completely.

Councilman Bob Fischer, who voted for the resolution, again went on record as personally opposing the library annex, but pointed out the sentiment of the citizens of Carmel desire the project. He therefore cast his vote for moving forward with the Harrison Memorial Library Annex.

It was also pointed out to the council that the additional 3,000 square feet of space will not necessarily house the library annex, but instead may have other uses.

At any rate, Councilman Bob Evans

WEST ELEVATION

THE NEW design for the proposed Harrison Memorial Library Annex will not have a second story, as pictured here looking east from the direction of Monte Verde Street. Instead, the building will spread westward over thought the price of "about $1 a square foot" was not a bad deal, and also opted to approve the resolution.

THE GRANT process for Phase II of the Carmel Beach Restoration Project was also given approval Nov. 4 by the council. But the actual decision as to whether to move on with the restoration was shelved for another month.

It was a shaky moment for supporters of the beach project as the council debated the pros and cons of applying for a $396,000 grant from the state Coastal Conservancy to help pay for the work. The deadline for applications is Nov. 7, which put the council in a position to either go for the grant or wait until next year.

The council approved the grant application 3-2 (Councilwoman Elinor Laiolo and Evans dissenting), but not without fierce debate prior to the vote.

"I don't think we should lose an entire year in applying for the grant," said Councilman Jim Wright. "If later we determine the grant would not be appropriate we could always withdraw it."

Evans said that applying for a grant before the project was approved was a dangerous maneuver.

"Grants are an insidious thing," he said. "I wonder if the deadline is causing us to take action. For us to adopt the resolution we are making a moral commitment to the beach restoration."

one story. The additional cost for shoring up the underground garage foundation will be $338,000, with a total cost estimated at $1.5 million.

It is not imperative that the grant money be used, even if it is approved, said Greg D'Ambrosio, city administrative services director. If the council at a later date decides to abandon the beach project, the grant money could be returned to the Coastal Conservancy or used for another project in Carmel.

D'Ambrosio also said that while the city applied for a $396,000 grant, the probable amount it would receive would be in the "$200,000 to $250,000" range.

"I tend to agree we have fairly good safeguards," said Mayor Clint Eastwood. "I don't see the downside."

But Evans still was not joining the bandwagon.

"Next we'll be applying for urban renewal grants," he said.

As the matter was approved an audible sigh of relief was heard from audience members who have fought for the beach restoration project.

With regard to the actual drawings needed to continue on the beach restoration, the council opted to postpone the matter until the results of the town hall meeting, held Nov. 3, could be examined.

"It was only last night," Eastwood said. "I would like to sleep on it."

At the town hall meeting the people attending overwhelmingly approved positive action on Phase II of the Beach Restoration Project by a show of hands and through the results of an informal telephone survey conducted by a group of residents. (See related story this issue.)

IN OTHER action the council also:

- Approved the nomination by Eastwood and appointed Laiolo as mayor pro tem, a position which had been occupied by Helen Arnold.

- Also appointed Laiolo as council representative to the Monterey Peninsula Water Management Policy Advisory Committee.

This was a position which Wright had been nominated for but withdrew his name.

"I disagreed with the projected demand (of water) based on new resident construction and expansion in the commercial district," Wright said. He added that this would represent a 50 percent increase in water usage in Carmel.

The council in September approved projected statistics for water use in Carmel.

- Unanimously approved a policy for active enforcement of all provisions of the land use code.

Until the meeting it had been unclear the city's stance regarding enforcement of matters such as transient housing.

But as a result of the policy, which Schmitz called "discretionary as well as political," the city will send its planning services coordinator to investigate all complaints and take appropriate action.

- Approved $10,000 in city funds to be applied to the Holman Highway Task Force to enter into Phase II of its project. This phase involves the actual drawings and environmental impact report for the project.

- Approved 3-1 (with Wright dissenting, Eastwood abstaining) a letter stating Carmel's beliefs on the Carmel Valley Master Plan.

The letter states that Carmel supports the exclusion of the Odello property from the master plan; supports the Hatton Canyon Freeway project; and also agrees with the Flood Mitigation Project in the mouth of the valley.

- Unanimously declined any interest in the Kinoull estate property, adjacent to Mission Trail Park, which was being offered in trade by attorney George Walker.

"The city cannot justify trying to sell city property (Flanders Mansion) and buy another property," Fischer said.

Carmel to sue water district over water allocation

By NANCY HILLS

THE CARMEL City Council voted in closed session Tuesday night to pursue a lawsuit against the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District's annual water allocation system.

According to information available at press time, the lawsuit is based on the contention that the allocation involves the water district in "illegal land use practices" by denying additional water for growth when there is no shortage in the supply.

Carmel is currently in its third month under a self-imposed building moratorium because figures submitted by California-American Water Co. in August showed Carmel's water use at 99.99 percent of its yearly allotment from the district.

The district itself does not currently have a moratorium on water meter permits in Carmel.

If the city had reached 100 percent or gone over at the August review, the district's ordinances mandate it impose a water meter permit moratorium on Carmel.

New numbers, released last week by Cal-Am, have Carmel using 100.4 percent of its allocation by June 30. Despite the new figures, according to Bruce Buel, water district general manager, the district has no plans to impose a moratorium on Carmel. It is in the process of reviewing the allocation, a review it hopes to complete in January.

In October, the city council voted to engage city and water rights attorney Daniel Curtin as special counsel to review the legalities of the allocation system. Relying on Curtin's analysis, the council voted to proceed with the litigation.

In a past committee meeting, district counsel, David Laredo has already explained that the allocation is a "planning tool" not a legal requirement. It does not guarantee the district's jurisdictions a specific amount of water.

However, Laredo added that a change in the allocation would require an environmental impact report (EIR) because it would change the growth plans of the district's jurisdictions.

Increasing the water supply would also require an EIR, the district maintains, and a vote by the public, which could take a year. Concerns about the peninsula's vulnerability during a two-year drought, like 1976-1977, has kept the district from allocating more water from its drought reserve.

The supply remains the same until a new project comes on line, such as the proposed San Clemente Dam, which would not be completed at least until 1992.

On Wednesday, Carmel Mayor Clint Eastwood said those timelines were a major factor in Carmel's decision to go ahead with the lawsuit.

"We just can't go along like this for a year," he said.

Eastwood said the city decided to file the lawsuit because turning the matter over to the courts would help to "de-politicize" the process of changing the allocating process or eliminating the system altogether.

Ironically, water district director Nick Lombardo, in appearance before the council on another matter, had suggested dropping the allocation system as a possible solution. Lombardo spoke just a couple of hours before the closed session.

Eastwood and councilmembers Elinor Laiolo and Bob Fischer, along with Carmel's representative to the water board, Alan Williams, have contended that Carmel's allocation is "unfair" when compared to the other five peninsula cities in the district and Monterey County's.

When contacted by The Pine Cone, Buel said he could make "no comment" about the council's decision because the matter is now in litigation.

The lawsuit will not change the water district board's plans to continue its review of the allocation process at its next board meeting, Buel said. That meeting is at 7:30 p.m., Monday, Nov. 10 in Monterey City Council Chambers.

One basis for the suit, which must be filed before 5 p.m. Thursday Nov. 6, is that the allocation is inequitable because it restricts growth of one jurisdiction within the district while providing water for growth in others. That constitutes "illegal land use practice" by the water district, the suit contends.

Though the water district is granted the power to restrict water use during an emergency, there is water available and thus the district cannot invoke its emergency powers to restrict Carmel's supply for growth.

At the October district board meeting, Carmel requested the boardmembers vote to increase Carmel's allocation by 100 ac. ft. as an interim solution.

Don Freeman, Carmel City Attorney, told the board the city did not want to take the water from any other municipality's allocation but asked that it be subtracted from the district's drought reserve.

Carmel has requested a total of 315 ac. ft. to bring the city's allocation "in parity" with other jurisdictions.

ed what the district considered the total annual district-wide water supply, 20,000 ac. ft., between the seven political jurisdictions within the district boundaries.

The division was done at the request of the California Coastal Commission so it could proceed with processing the peninsula's Local Coastal Programs and was not originally a part of the water district's duties.

Each jurisdiction's allotment was based on their water consumption in 1979 which was then added to their projected future growth demand.

A hypothetical example would be if City X was using 500 ac. ft. in 1979 and projected that by the year 2000, it would need an additional 300 ac. ft. to supply growth expected to occur over the years.

Therefore, City X's allocation would be 800 ac. ft. a year. When its water use had reached the 800 ac. ft., through growth or whatever, the district would set a moratorium on new water connections in City X, no matter how much of the total 20,000 ac. ft. was not being used.

At the same time, City X's neighbor, City Y, still may not be using 400 ac. ft. of its allocation, but be planning to use it for future building projects and continuing to set new water connections.

It is that difference, allowing City Y to grow while City X can't, even though there is no shortage, that the Carmel case states is illegal.

At that time the allocation was set, the peninsula was consuming about 14,000 ac. ft. per year, including unmetered water use.

As of July 1, 1986, water use on the peninsula reached 17,937 ac. ft., leaving approximately 2,000 ac. ft. of the district-wide total unused. That 2,000 ac. ft. is the total of all with the Eastwood administration's philosophy of less restrictions on growth.

In its last report, the general plan committee recommended less restrictions on parking for existing commercial structures and the legalization of subordinate units (so-called "second kitchens"), which would further add density to Carmel already crowded conditions.

'They shouldn't be touching it (the city's general plan),' says former City Councilman David Maradei. 'They are modifying the general plan in the image of Clint Eastwood.'

Wright said he was not in favor of Evans being picked to fill the vacated council seat, but felt impotent in trying to nominate another candidate. He felt the selection had already been decided before the session between other councilmembers.

FORMER CARMEL City Councilman David Maradei believes the general plan committee has no business revising the current plan. He cites the city's lack of resources and the impacts of traffic, parking and increased water use as reasons to leave well enough alone.

As a result, Wright remained the only "nay" vote during the special election by councilmembers.

Wright said he believes he is providing a service to Carmel and that he represents more citizens than the other councilmembers would like to believe.

"I feel I represent a fair number of people in the community," he said, referring to letters and phone calls of support he receives. "They deserve a vote and I'll continue to act accordingly."

FIRST AND foremost in many disgruntled residents' minds is the city's revision of the general plan. While most opponents of the revision do not fear expanded business growth per se, they do anticipate a few business owners being less restricted in their ways.

"There are probably not more than 15 or 25 people who stand to benefit," Nieman said, referring to the rezoning tactics which are aimed at allowing less restriction of business practices in the commercial district surrounding Ocean Avenue.

Critics of the current general plan committee point out two major flaws in its practices: the building-oriented professions of most of its members, and the lack of public input welcomed at the general plan committee meetings.

Nieman points out the professions of the general plan members as two property owners (Alan Williams and Evans), two architects (Ed Hicks and Olof Dahlstrand) and a coastal geologist and member of the Beach Task Force (Jean Grace).

Critics also claim that there is no way, with this makeup of members, that the general plan will not become pro-business. In fact, at least one person says it's a foregone conclusion what will transpire.

"The policy which will come out of the general plan will be rubber stamped by the planning commission, rubber stamped by the council and disastrous to the community," Wright said.

Wright said with the general plan revisions Carmel could expect rezoning which will permit additional "visitor-serving" uses instead of residential use; a rezoning of the R-4

COUNCILMAN JAMES Wright has had the difficult position of being the only member of the current city council to have served on the previous council, whose views differed greatly from the current regime.

district, which will provide for more hotels (Williams represents two of the major owners in the R-4 district); and a general direction which will provide expansion of "business activity."

One of the principal reasons the general plan is being rewritten, Nieman said, is because of pressure being exerted on the administration by supporters of Eastwood's mayoral campaign. These few business interests are providing the direction for the city. A direction which does not necessarily have a public mandate, he added.

Agreeing with Nieman was former councilman David Maradei.

"They shouldn't be touching it (the plan)," Maradei said. "They are modifying the general plan in the image of Clint Eastwood."

Maradei said the only reason Eastwood was elected with the more than 70 percent vote of approval is because he represented himself as a "residential candidate," an idea that some have come to question.

"The bottom line is he has made appointments and policy in a direction held contrary by many residents," Nieman said.

Maradei agreed with Nieman and said the sheer lack of logic in revising the general plan smacks of private interests.

"The philosophy is inconsistent with what Carmel has available," he said. He added that with more business there is increased parking, truck unloading and water use.

"We just don't have the resources," he said. "The city council wants to unleash business inside the city — that's a mistake."

THE CRITICS of the new general plan committee also question whether the public is getting its legal input into the process.

"There is zero public input except for someone who is financially involved," Wright said. "I quit attending the general plan committee meetings out of disgust."

Wright said the state code stipulates that there are "minimum requirements" for the implementation of a general plan. These, he said, are not being met in Carmel.

The code states the general plan should be prepared with the active involvement of the public and adopted with the support of broad public consensus.

Mayor Eastwood fires back at his detractors

By DAVID LELAND

MAYOR CLINT Eastwood remains undaunted by his latest critics. Entering into his seventh month in office, he believes his policies are both fair and benefit the majority of Carmel residents.

The Pine Cone gave Eastwood an opportunity to respond to accusations lodged by several of his detractors. Here are his comments.

'I am not pro-business; I am anti-business. I would like to see more residential-oriented business and less tourist-oriented business. (The problem is) there is an awful lot of money spent by tourists in Carmel. Most of the tax base is from tourists. If there are less tourists, the residents will have to pay more taxes. They wouldn't like that.'

Mayor Clint Eastwood

Does he consider himself pro-business?

"I am not pro-business; I am anti-business. I would like to see more residential-oriented business and less tourist-oriented business. (The problem is) there is an awful lot of money spent by tourists in Carmel. Most of the tax base is from tourists."

"If there are less tourists, the residents will have to pay more taxes. They wouldn't like that."

On members of the previous council making scathing comments on the Eastwood administration.

"Driving a wedge is the style of the previous administration. They want to keep antagonism in the community."

"I think there is better spirit in the community now than in recent years."

Does Eastwood feel pressured by those who supported him in his campaign to revise the city's general plan?

"I don't feel pressured by anybody. Winning by a 3-1 margin sticks in their (the previous council's) craws that they are not in touch with the community."

On revising the general plan.

"The general plan committee's recommendations are not written in gold — they are merely suggestions. The planning commission will make the decisions it wants."

Does he consider himself pro-resident?

"I am extremely pro-resident. They (the previous council) say they are pro-resident, but I think they are the most anti-resident in years."

"I live in this community, I don't work here." (Eastwood said the Hog's Breath Inn, which he co-owns with five others, represents only a small part of his earnings.)

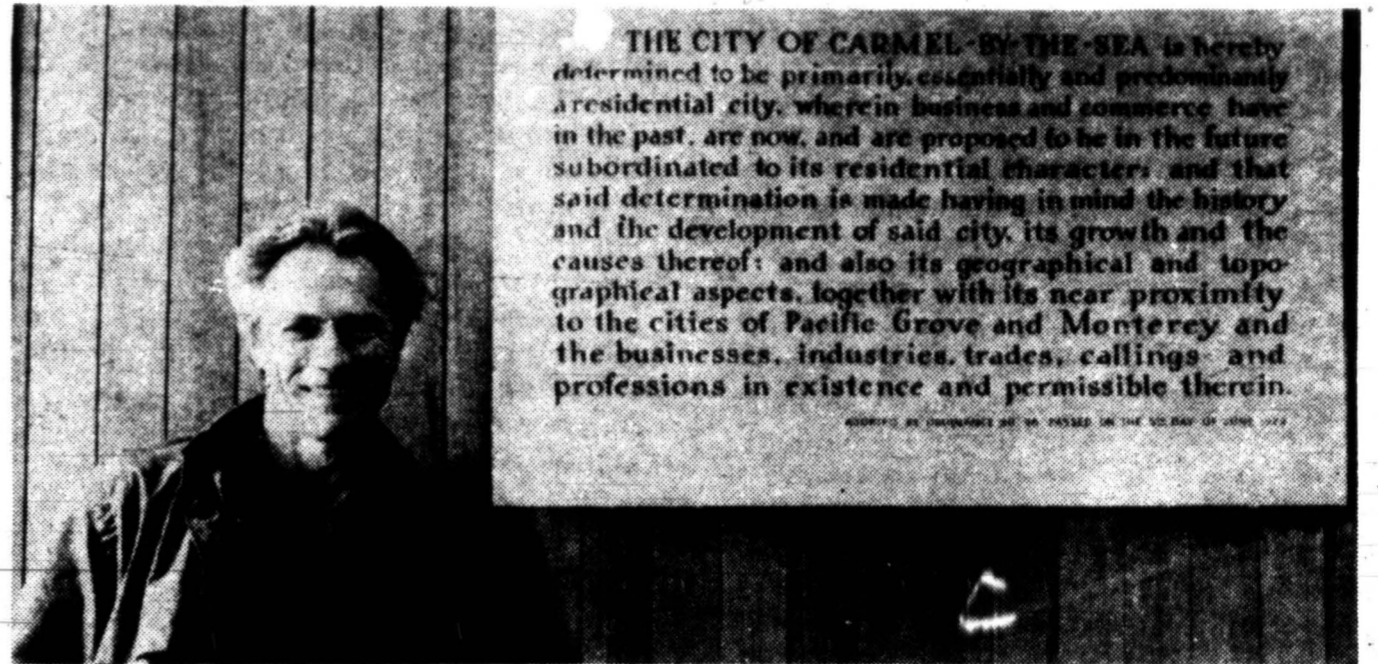

On appointing Alan Williams, an architect and builder who represents developers in the R-4 district, to the general plan committee. Does this provide a conflict of interest?

"Conflict of interest is something everybody's looking to find. Just because a man is an architect doesn't mean he doesn't love his community."

"I don't think it is a prerequisite to be retired to serve the community. The question is: how much does a person that criticizes put into their community?"

On why there are adverse comments on Eastwood's policies.

"The complainers complain and the satisfied stay quiet."

WHILE MAYOR Clint Eastwood's detractors claim he is pro-business, the mayor claims that he is doing everything he can to keep Carmel a "residential city" as stated in the city's 1929 preamble, often called the city's Magna Carta, which states that the business community is secondary to the residential nature of the city. (Holly McFarland photo.)

Mayor Eastwood foes speak out

In general, the code states the program should address at least four issues:

- Identify community values and goals.
- Educate the public about the major issues, problems, and opportunities to be addressed in the plan.
- Give the public opportunities to evaluate alternatives and to participate in choosing the preferred alternatives.
- Create an atmosphere in which conflicting demands for limited community resources can be resolved.

Nieman said the only surveys done by the city were presented in 1982 and 1985, which showed that the public clearly wanted to remain residential.

While the public is invited to attend the general plan meetings in city hall held at 3:30 p.m. each Friday, the matters are often too complicated to understand and move too rapidly for the layman to follow.

"Citizen input is discouraged," Mayer said. "There's no minority voice possible in Carmel anymore."

Nieman goes as far as to say that "fairness" is not involved whatsoever at the general plan meetings.

"Evans uses fairness to facilitate the business community," he said. "Fairness is somewhat of a myth in the eyes of the beholder."

Mayer said she also has concerns about the way the general plan committee is being run.

"It's appalling," she said. "I have grave concerns about the legality of what's going on."

Town hall meeting provides sparks, consensus

By DAVID LELAND

WHILE THE Carmel Beach Restoration Project stole most of the thunder at Monday's town hall meeting, Carmel residents also used the time to address issues ranging from the city's general plan revisions and tour buses to parking and water usage.

An estimated 200 residents gathered in the theater at Sunset Center to voice their opinions without restrictions normally applied during a city council meeting. Carmelites took turns stepping up to the microphone, talking directly to Mayor Clint Eastwood.

It appeared that most residents attending the meeting favored passage of the Beach Restoration Project, which entails a walkway along Scenic Road, a narrowing of the road and 42 fewer parking places than are currently available. The project carries with it a $750,000 price tag.

Money did not appear an obstacle to Tom Nash, a former city planning commissioner.

"Money should be spent to enhance the life of residents," he said. "We should be taking the money from the tourists (taxes) and turn it over to make the residents' lives worth living."

Supporters of the beach project came armed with a telephone survey, which showed 83 percent of the 112 Carmel residents polled by telephone favoring the restoration. Near the end of the evening's presentations on the beach restoration, the audience also showed it overwhelmingly favored the project by a show of hands.

Eastwood, who presided over the two-hour meeting, agreed with opponents of the show-of-hands vote being an untrue reading of the public's sentiment, but felt the vote was a "good sample" of public opinion.

In October, the city council had requested the town hall meeting to gather public input on the beach restoration project for its Nov. 4 gathering.

Not all residents agreed with giving the go-ahead on the beach restoration. In fact, several felt that the matter should be taken out of the city council's hands altogether and placed directly with the voters.

"I want Carmel kept just the way it was," said one resident. "There is no need for a walkway in my estimation. The people should be given an opportunity to vote."

Eastwood did not respond to the comment, but said this sort of input is why he had called for a town hall meeting.

Another resident voiced fears of a spillover of cars from Scenic Road to other streets.

"Every parking place that is lost on Scenic Road will be used on San Antonio Avenue and Carmelo Street," he said.

In answer to this problem one resident talked of trying to eliminate cars to stop congestion.

"There's just too many people who want to park in Carmel," he said, as applause broke out in the theater. "We should limit the amount of cars we want to park in Carmel."

THE MOST controversial issue at the town hall meeting involved an 8-by-10-inch blue sheet of paper, distributed by a group of citizens whose views oppose those of Eastwood.

While former city councilman Robert Stevenson admitted he drafted the flier, he also named Jane Mayer, former general plan chairperson; Howard Nieman, a financial investor; and Sandy Swain, former planning commission chairperson, as some of the authors of the paper.

The flier named several concerns which the group said needed to be addressed by residents of Carmel:

- Development. Rezoning the R-4 district for the "benefit of developers."
- Parking. Giving parking stickers to "out of town property owners."
- Water. Projecting massive development will require 50 percent more water.
- Seawall. Ignoring environmental impacts for McFarland seawall.
- Trees. Overturning forestry commission decisions in order to permit cutting of trees.

AT MONDAY'S town hall meeting interested residents were allowed a first-hand look at the architect's drawings for Phase II of the Carmel Beach Restoration Project.

• Volunteers. Non-elected and non-resident volunteers directing city activities from city hall offices.

• Tour buses. Relaxing of tour bus restrictions to promote greater tourist travel.

Eastwood claimed to be surprised by the appearance of the flier, but recovered quickly to dispute all of its allegations one by one. Several residents, however, demanded to speak to the mayor on his policies.

"My major concern is the makeup of the general plan committee," said Barbara Brooks, a former general plan committee member in Pleasant Hill. "It's a little too ingrown to have a member of the committee on the city council and two members also on the planning commission." She was referring to Councilman Bob Evans and Planning Commissioners Ed Hicks and Olef Dahlstrand.

Brooks said on her tenure on Pleasant Hill's general plan committee, it was a requirement that members have no "vested interest" in the city, with the exception of their residence.

Eastwood disputed the "fox in the henhouse" analogy drawn by Brooks, regarding members having possible conflicts of interest in city development.

"I don't think everyone is out for the game," he said.

Architect Alan Williams, who is also representing two clients in the R-4 district, said he has "stepped down appropriately" on matters concerning the R-4 zone.

The question-and-answer session evoked a positive response by the audience towards proceeding with the beach project. (Holly McFarland photo).

Sparks also flew as Mayer read from a prepared page of manuscript.

Mayer addressed a number of issues but Eastwood bristled as she spoke of the strict security used at current council meetings.

"Carmel is not accustomed to confrontations with the police either in uniform or in plain clothes," she said, referring to the police who stand guard at city council meetings.

Eastwood began speaking as Mayer attempted to finish her speech.

"You're being destructive not constructive," he said. "I believe in control, but over control is not pro-residential."

Mayer finished her statement but at least one person viewed the mayor's comments as out of line.

"He is a despicable chairperson," Stevenson said. "The way he interrupts, is flip and cuts people off is no way to run an intelligent meeting."

Eastwood also said the number of tour buses allowed to park in Carmel numbers only about 25 each day, which is an acceptable amount.

He ended the meeting by saying he would like to have another town hall meeting "within the next six months or sooner."

Apartments, tow truck top planning agenda

By NANCY HILLS

APARTMENTS OVER Dansk on Ocean Avenue and a controversial tow truck are just two of the issues the Carmel Planning Commission will consider at its Nov. 12 meeting.

The commission will meet directly after its tour which starts 3 p.m. Wednesday in Carmel City Council chambers. Since the tour begins at 3 p.m., the meeting could begin anytime between then and 4 p.m. The commission changed the time so it could wind up its meetings earlier.

In addition to Ted Leidig's application to construct seven apartments over Dansk Building and complaints about a tow truck operating out of the residential district, the commission will review an application for office space on Lincoln Street near Fifth Avenue, a full liquor license for Hacienda Restaurant, replacement of the Surf Tides Inn with a residential care facility, removal of "artist in residence" condition on the Lynn Lupetti Gallery and an expansion of merchandise in Wooden Horse toy store.

• Leidig's application calls for seven apartments, three two-bedroom and four one-bedroom, over the Dansk and Hanson Gallery buildings on the corner of Ocean Avenue and San Carlos Street.

Seven apartments exceeds the density in the zone, explained Staff Planner Brian Roseth, which would allow a maximum of six.

The plans also run into the city's internal water allocation system for growth in each land use zone. Carmel's own allotment system was set up to divide the unused portion of the city's water allocation from the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District among the zones and the type of development considered desirable. An example of that process is 12 ac. ft. set aside for the development of the R-4 zone.

However, Carmel's water use has reached almost 100 percent of its allocation from the water district, therefore it is currently unknown how much is left for further building. Roseth said the city must determine the amount of water there is for residential development in the Central Commercial District before approving Leidig's application.

Leidig's application is one of three he has submitted for constructing residences above his buildings. The other proposed building sites are above the Village Corner on the corner of Dolores Street and Fifth Avenue and adding second-story apartments above the Court of the Fountains on the west side of Mission Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues. These plans will be reviewed at a later date.

• A special time might be set aside for what may prove to be the most hotly contested agenda item. The commission will review neighbors' complaints about the activities of a AAA tow truck which they say is operating out of a home on Eighth Street between Santa Fe and Torres streets.

The truck belongs to the Mobil Station, owned by Harry Giem, on corner of San Carlos Street and Seventh Avenue and is the AAA emergency vehicle. Neighbors who wrote the city to complain stated that one of the station workers brings the truck home and leaves from his house when he receives a call. His departure is accompanied by a revving of the engine and the rattling of the truck's equipment.

Other neighbors have written to the city supporting the activities of the AAA truck.

• The commission will also review a request by Jack Brushert to sell hard liquor from his Mexican restaurant, Hacienda, on the corner of Dolores Street and Fifth Avenue.

The application was continued from the Oct. 22 meeting after staff explained Brushert needed to submit plans for the restaurant and bar.

Currently, the Hacienda sells beer and wine from a full-sized bar located in the restaurant.

The ordinance for new permits of spirits sales states alcoholic drinks must be from a service bar only and not from a bar where the public can stand, sit or order drinks. Additionally there can be no special room or section set aside for the sale of alcoholic beverages, such as a cocktail lounge, and food must be served during the hours liquor is sold (except the first and last hour).

A concern of the planning staff was the location of the restaurant, which borders both the residential and residential/service district. It is located next to the Carmel Foundation Hazeltine Apartments and across from the proposed Senior Citizen Housing complex currently being used as a parking lot.

However, Brushert pointed out during the last meeting that the restaurant is underground or beneath the buildings of Del Dono Court, so noise generated in the bar itself would probably be contained.

• The commission will review a use permit to demolish the 16-room Surf Tides Inn on the corner of Fifth Avenue and Mission Street and replace it with a residential care facility for ambulatory clients. The Surf Tides Inn was built in the mid-1950s, according to Mary Kleinbardt, the local contact for the proposal.

Kleinbardt explained the project will be undertaken as a joint partnership between the current owners, a Southern California-based limited partnership called Wayside Carmel, and still undisclosed additional partners. The arrangements are still incomplete, she said.

• In another use permit application, the commission will consider a request by Julian Bills to convert a residence and its attached garage on east side of Lincoln Street between Sixth and Fifth avenues. The plans include adding a second-story office space over the garage.

• The Lynn Lupetti Gallery, Sixth Avenue between Dolores and Lincoln streets, applied to remove an "artist in residence" requirement from its use permit.

The condition was placed on the gallery about a year ago when the planning commission allowed the gallery to move in. The location had been the New Masters Gallery, owned by Bill Hill, which moved to new quarters in the then newly-built Cottage Row complex on the corner of San Carlos Street and Sixth Avenue.

The planning commission had given Hill a use permit for his new location on the condition his old space not be leased to a full-service art gallery. City policy stated that there were enough art galleries in the city and stopped issuing use permits for new locations — commercial spaces that had not previously been art gallery. After Hill had been unsuccessful in his attempts to lease the location to other types of commercial enterprises, the planning commission permitted the Lupetti Gallery after its owners said the artist would use the space as a studio as well as a gallery — be an "artist in residence."

The planning commission wished to encourage this type of gallery. However, Lupetti has used the gallery infrequently for painting and doing her work and the owners wish to remove the requirement.

If the commission decides to drop the "artist in residence" requirement, it could set a precedent for completely new art galleries to open in Carmel.

• Dennis Smiley and Dale Williams, owners of Gepetto's Collectables in The Crossroads, have applied to add collectables to the use permit for the Wooden Horse toy store on Lincoln Street. Smiley and Williams are in the process of purchasing the shop.

Pope John Paul II will visit Carmel Mission

By MAC McDONALD

THE LONG-RUNNING rumors of a Papal visit to the Monterey Peninsula have been officially confirmed. Pope John Paul II will visit the peninsula — and the Carmel Mission Basilica — during a three-hour stopover in the county Sept. 17, 1987.

Ted Elisee, director of communications for the Catholic Diocese of Monterey, broke the official news — which had been rumored for several months — at a press conference in a courtyard at the Mission.

The Pope will make the stopover during his eight-day trip to the United States, Sept. 10-18, the first visit ever by a Pope to the West Coast of the U.S.

Elisee said the Pope will arrive by helicopter at the ballpark adjacent to the Mission, will speak on evangelization at the Carmel Mission Basilica, then helicopter to Laguna Seca Raceway, where a potential crowd of 100,000 is expected to greet him.

The Pope, however, will not say Mass at either the Mission or Laguna Seca and he is not expected to conduct beatification ceremonies for Father Junipero Serra then.

"This Papal trip has nothing to do with beatification of Father Serra," Elisee said. "There is no word on that, but we do have back-up plans."

Beatification ceremonies, if any, would be held at Laguna Seca. Ceremonies take about three hours, he added.

Elisee said free tickets would be distributed for the Pope's appearance at Laguna Seca and that a shuttle bus system would be instituted. The visit to the Mission could attract up to 6,000 people, he said, but that only 300 will fit in the Basilica.

Security for the visit will obviously be tight, Elisee said, and because the Pope would be a visiting head of state, the Secret Service will be involved.

"It's no secret that a (Vatican) liaison team and the Secret Service have been here four times in the last year," he said.

About the possibility of a meeting between Carmel Mayor Clint Eastwood and the Pope, which had been reported in the wire services, Elisee laughed.

"The statement was made in jest in Phoenix (during a U.S. Catholic Conference meeting)," Elisee said. "Mayor Eastwood simply said he would welcome a visit by the Pope."

Elisee added that Eastwood would be part of a contingent of local officials who will greet the Pope, but no plans for a private audience have been discussed.

The Pope will speak on the subject of agriculture at Laguna Seca and is expected to have "members of the growers and workers community" with him on stage. Other "grassroots people" will join the Pope at the Mission Basilica.

"There will be no Mass at the present time," Elisee said. "There will be prayers and hymns, but no Mass."

The total cost of the visit is estimated to be $1.5 million, including security precautions, which will be borne by the U.S. government. The diocese of Monterey would foot the rest of the bill, he said.

Carmel sues water district over its water allocation

the unused portions of the other jurisdictions allocations.

Most do, however, have future plans for the water, and in some cases have approved projects not yet built that will consume the rest of their allocations. Though most of the other cities and the county are using about 90 percent of their allocations, Carmel is the only one to reach its limit as of 1986.

To reallocate the 20,000 ac. ft. so Carmel can receive more, another jurisdiction would have to give up some of its water allotment, which could curtail its own growth. Members of water district committees, representing the jurisdictions, have been unable to find a solution to Carmel's problem without endangering their own future plans.

and general manager of Cal-Am, has explained.

Cal-Am's preliminary numbers in July showed Carmel was using 100.37 percent of its allocation, and the water district board imposed a temporary moratorium on Carmel to avoid a "rush to the pump" before its official review at its August meeting.

At Carmel's request, Cal-Am "audited" the meters its computers had listed in the city's boundaries. The audit turned up water use from 17 meters outside of Carmel attributed to the city's total use.

When that water use was subtracted, the figures showed Carmel was at 99.99 percent of its allocation and in August the district lifted the moratorium.

Carmel City Council, in the meantime, imposed an urgency moratorium of its own on building to keep water consumption from increasing and instituted some water conservation programs.

Cal-Am, at the request of the district, continued to audit all the jurisdictions meters and the most recent numbers released last week showed Carmel actually had exceeded its allocation on June 31, and water consumption was at 100.4 percent of the city's allotment.

THE COMPLEX problem has been further confused by changing numbers from Cal-Am about how much water Carmel used during this past "water year," which ended June 30.

The company uses information on boundaries it receives from the cities or county and had to develop a special computer program for the allocation, Larry Foy, vice president

CITIZENS AND SOLDIERS BATTLE WITH FLAMES

One of the most disastrous fires, in area covered and amount of damage wrought, that has ever occurred in this section, broke out last Saturday morning, in the hill, canyon and ranch section about four miles southeast of Carmel and west of the Carmel Valley road.

It was not until the early hours of Monday morning that the fire was brought under control by the combined efforts of citizens and soldiers. On Saturday afternoon Col. J.N. Jenkins, commandant of the Monterey Presidio, was informed of the seriousness of the situation, and immediately issued orders for this entire force to render all the aid possible to subdue the flames.

ROOSEVELT CARRIES CARMEL by 85 votes POLITICAL HISTORY IS UPSET

For the first time in history, Carmel "went Democratic" in Tuesday's election, giving Franklin Delano Roosevelt 85 votes more than were received by Alf M. Landon. The results were surprising to all save more optimistic members of the Carmel Roosevelt club, inasmuch as final registration figures received early in October showed Republicans to be leading Democrats by 71. Roosevelt received 656 votes here, with only 698 Democrats registered; Landon received 571 votes, with 769 Republicans registered. In explanation of the discrepancy was offered the theory that many business men and working men, registered Republican for "business reasons," voted for the president.

RIVER SCHOOL DRAGON IS MISSING! FORLORN FACULTY, SAD STUDENTS SEARCH!

The River School Dragon is gone. Borrowed, purloined, mislaid, or tossed away by mistake — no one known what happened. But for the first time in six years the traditional River Dragon failed to lead River School students down the Hallowe'en trail this week.

As familiar to River students as the Loch Ness Monster is to Scotsmen, and far more believable, the big, fabricated beast with papier-mache head and a green cloth body has annually meandered at the head of the Hallowe'en procession on the morning of October 31, River's biggest day of the year.

Manned and manipulated by three River teachers, "who always had great difficulty straightening up afterward," according to Principal Richard E. O'Connell, the dragon was a Chinese-style beast, and one much too large to be lost without a trace. But it appears it got lost anyhow.

PROLIFERATING BARS CONCERN COUNCIL

The battle of the bars spread briefly into the city council meeting Tuesday night, but the council dropped the matter, leaving it to the planning commission. Councilman Mike Brown lighted a brief spark by bringing the matter of Carmel's proliferating bars before the council, asking that the planning commission be encouraged to look into the matter.

Council was told that there are only two actual bars by name in Carmel, but 16 bars which are part of restaurants. Brown, noting that several of those restaurant bars had turned into just plain bars, suggested that the planning commission put a limit on the numbers of hard liquor licenses issued to restaurants in Carmel. That, Brown said, might bring the spread of restaurants in the city "to a screeching halt."

SCHOOL ADVISORY GROUP DIVIDED OVER DECISION TO CLOSE TWO SCHOOLS

Members of the Citizens' Advisory Committee which studied declining enrollment and reduced revenues in the Carmel Unified School District seemed as divided as the public over the Board of Education's decision to close two elementary schools next year.

Those parent members of the 12-person committee who disagreed with the board's decision to close Carmel Woods and Carmelo elementary schools felt the trustees had disregarded the committee's recommendations.

But some members of the committee who said they never endorsed the group's recommendations last June said they agreed with the board action as a necessary first step toward reduction of costs.

Where have all the alumni gone?

By MARIE ISHIDA
CHS Principal

CARMEL HIGH school recently completed an exciting week of Homecoming Activities, including the crowning of Homecoming Queen Jackie Gardner...and beating King City on the football field!

Padre Parents sponsored a beautiful reception immediately after the game. I looked forward to meeting many of our alumni at the reception, and was disappointed that so few attended. (Thanks to Lou Langley and her crew for delicious refreshments and festive decorations.)

After having had a week to talk with people and to reflect further, several thoughts come to mind: first, that we as a school must do a better job of advertising our activities within the community; secondly, we need to develop a plan whereby we can locate and update addresses of alumni; and third, we must plan more activities to include alumni — a barbecue, class reunions, a dance.

In addition to winning our football game, all four classes did an outstanding job on their floats...and the parade in downtown Carmel generated tremendous excitement.

But we missed the alumni!

If you happen to be Carmel High alumni, please contact the school, giving your current address and any suggestions you might have to bring more alumni back to Carmel High during Homecoming. We are proud of our alumni, we want to keep in contact with them, and we want them to be proud of Carmel High.

Library offers evening storytime for children 2-4

THE HARRISON Memorial Library will offer their popular evening Storytimes for children every Wednesday in November.

Parents of children 2 to 4 years of age can bring their children to the story-telling sessions every Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the library.

In addition to reading books there will also be singing and projects for children. Kids can come in pajamas and parents are encouraged to grab a blanket and junior's teddy bear for the sessions.

FRIENDLY VISITOR TRAINING DATES SET FOR VISITOR TRAINING

The Alliance on Aging Senior Supportive Services will be presenting its fall training course for prospective volunteers for the Friendly Visitor Service 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 8 at 940 N. Main Street, Salinas Community Center, Salinas and Saturday, Nov. 15 at 280 Dickman, New Monterey Neighborhood Center, Monterey. The classes are free.

Topics that will be covered will be resources in the community, needs of the elderly, the myths of aging, "preventive aging," medication, nutrition, exercise, listening skills, why "friends are good medicine."

For information or to make reservations, please call the Alliance offices: Salinas at 758-0911 or Monterey at 646-4636.

The visitor service is a social support program that meets the needs of older persons who live alone or reside in rest care facilities. The volunteers visit, escort the frail elderly, offer telephone reassurance, write letters, read, support the weekly luncheon (which offers opportunities for social interaction, learning and entertainment), and present musical, educational and therapeutic programs in rest care facilities.

CHURCH SCHEDULES "BIG BAZAAR"

Santarama XX, "the big bazaar," will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday Nov. 8, at the First United Methodist Church, Sunset and 17-Mile Drive, Pacific Grove. Gifts galore, including Yule jewels, children's corner, classy collectibles, art gallery and gourmet goodies, will be featured. Lunch will be served in the country kitchen. Admission is free. For information call 372-5875.

ALL SAINTS' CHURCH PRESENTS HARVEST TEA

The annual Harvest Tea and Bazaar, presented by the Episcopal Churchwomen of All Saints' Church, takes place from 2 to 5 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 8 at the church Parish Hall, Ninth and Lincoln in Carmel.

Festive table settings by local merchants and church members will center around the theme, "Tea and Trumpets," heralding the approaching holiday season and All Saints' Church 75th anniversary to be celebrated in 1987.

Unique hand-crafted items—pillows, sweaters, stuffed toys — will be on sale. The Country Pantry laden with jams, jellies and many baked items will offer tempting holiday treats. In addition, barbecued ribs and chicken, prepared by the All Saints' chefs, will be available to take out. For hunters of bargains, the Treasure Room will brim with silver, china, cut glass and boutique items.

Visitors will be treated to a taste of tea and crumpets while browsing. Donations are $2 at the door. For more information, contact All Saints' Episcopal Church at 624-3883. Babysitting will be available.

VIOLET SOCIETY SETS PLANT SALE

The African Violet Society of the Monterey Peninsula will hold its semi-annual plant sale and show from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday Nov. 8 at the Crossroads, Rio Road and Highway 1, Carmel.

Sale items will include large blooming plants as well as small, starter plants. The location is between Safeway and Longs Drugs. For information call Gertrude Bisnett at 372-5782.

UNITED WAY ALMOST HALFWAY TO GOAL

The United Way of the Monterey Peninsula has to date raised more than $360,000, or 42 percent of its goal of $858,525, according to Janice Russo, campaign chairperson.

The organization hopes to raise the balance of more than $495,000 by Dec. 1.

"We are very pleased with the response to our campaign this year," Russo said. "Last year at this time we were at 25 percent of our goal. This high percentage is directly attributable to successful campaigns at several of our major firm donors. Macy's employees' donations increased by 20 percent to $17,000, 96 percent of Mervyn's employees made pledges this year, and 100 percent of the employees at Monterey County Bank participated."

President Clark Struve also noted the donation from Monterey Peninsula Golf Foundation of $50,000 and the success of the 36th annual Concours d'Elegance, which garnered almost $100,000 for United Way (proceeds were split with Pebble Beach Foundation).

MARITIME HISTORY THE SUBJECT FOR WESTERNERS

"The Early Maritime History of San Francisco and Monterey" will be described by Dr. Boyd Huff at the upcoming Westerners meeting scheduled for 8 p.m. Monday, Nov. 10 at St. John's Parish Hall in Monterey; it is free and open to the public.

The Monterey County Corral of Westerners meets on the second Monday of the month throughout the year, at St. John's Parish Hall, Mark Thomas Drive and Josselyn Canyon Road in Monterey. A pot-luck dinner at 7 p.m. is followed by a program at 8 p.m. Further information is available at the meetings or at 624-4490.

CARMEL VOICE

By Sam Salerno

Surprise, surprise!

WHAT A surprise to walk into Maxwell McFly's and to see lovely Debbie Canepa mixing the drinks behind the bar. Debbie always has a kind word and an ingratiating smile. She's the daughter of Steve Canepa, the San Francisco Chronicle distributor for the Carmel area. Stop by and say hello.

SPEAKING TO THE YOUTH

Got to meet Dave Dalby, who was the starting center for the Oakland Raiders for 14 years after Jim Otto retired. This year he was replaced by Dan Mosebar of USC. Dave was in town and spoke at the Carmel Youth Center. Dave lives in the Bay Area and to this date isn't sure of what he'll be doing in the future...the cut from the Raiders was too sudden to plan a new profession.

QUEEN'S CAR

On a quick jaunt to Palm Springs, stopped in at the new Marquis Hotel where they were auctioning off exotic automobiles. One of the cars was a 1956 Rolls Royce owned by Queen Elizabeth II. We didn't stay around long enough to find out if there were any takers for that one...it was black in color and in superb condition. An expert in the area whom we spoke with said that the price would be a quarter of a million or more for the vehicle.

BUILDING SPEC HOMES

What does a man do when he acquires a contractor's license? Build spec homes, what else? That's what Richard Qualia is doing since he received his contractors license. He tells me he'll be breaking ground soon on a new spec home in Pebble Beach. In addition to this project, Richard is owner of the Lone Oak Motel in Monterey. Now, he says, there is no time for golf.

FATAL IN FUR

Dee Borsella has a winner in her "Fatal In Fur" show at Lincoln and Sixth. There are suede and furs designed by Dee and accessories and exotic skins by Hedy Peterson. The fashions can be seen through Dec. 31st. Dee would like to see her friends for this one!

UNFORGETTABLE CHARACTER

James Cannon, who has written and illustrated six books, and is in his 80s, can be seen daily walking up San Carlos with cane in hand and then to Friar Tuck's for his morning coffee and toast. He recites this one from a Steinbeck novel:

"The miners came in '49,

The whores in '51,

And together, they made the native son."

Frisky old guy, that Cannon! He resembles the late Adolph Menjou!

MADE HIS DAY AND CAREER

Bobby Clampett, Carmel's touring pro, had everyone on edge the past couple of weeks. His many fans in this area were worried that he would have to return to PGA Qualifying School for the next season because he hadn't earned enough money to be in the top 130 and there was only one more scheduled event left. In Texas, Bobby played three sparkling rounds of golf, a 67, 68 and then a 66. Before the last round, he was three shots off the pace and in contention to win his first since the Southern Open. Well, it had been storming in Texas and the final round was washed out, which meant that Clampett tied for third place and a check for more than $48,000. This coupled with what he had already won, put him at $94,678 and he jumped from around 135th position to 85th and is now breathing new life in his golfing career. We hope this is the forerunner of things to come in 1987. Bobby has too much talent to be a mediocre golfer. When he started on the tour he was the heir apparent to the crown held by Jack Nicklaus. Go get 'em Bobby! It's been a long time!

SINATRA FIGHTS BACK

During our trip to Palm Springs we heard rumors that Frank Sinatra and daughter Nancy will be fighting back at the latest unauthorized biography on Frank's life. If you recall, Frank tried to stop the printing of this book but the courts upheld the writing and now Sinatra is steaming. It also erodes the sales of his daughter's book on papa. It'll be interesting to see what happens.

HALLOWEEN IN CARMEL

Nice to see so many folks involved in Halloween in Carmel. It was a blast to make the rounds and try to guess who was behind the mask. Let's do it again next year.
See you next week!

Farmers' market changes hours

The farmers' market, operated weekly in the lower parking lot at Monterey Peninsula College, is now open 2:30 to 6 p.m. Thursdays.

CARMEL RIVER WATER NEWS

By Henrietta Stern

Survival of the fittest

THE SAGA fo the "water supply alternatives championships" continues...Which ones passed the three critical tests? Which did not? And what happens next? The purpose of today's column is to answer these and other questions.

Pine Cone readers may recall my previous column that described the water management district's evaluation of various alternatives to the proposed new San Clemente Dam. Those of you with good memories know that we must analyze all "feasible" water supply alternatives at an equal level of detail for the Environmental Impact Statement (EIS). (An EIS is required by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers as part of our 404 Permit.)

The key here is, "What is feasible?" That's where our "water supply championships" come in. They consist of a three part series of "screenings" developed to weed out the infeasible alternatives. Part One, which occurred last August, reduced the initial field of 34 alternatives to 17. Part Two occurred at the board's Oct. 30 workshop, where the 17 individual semi-finalists were reduced to six. These six were chosen on the basis of total annual cost, yield if the worst drought year happened again, and cost-effectiveness (the cost per ac.-ft. of yield.) The tool used to assess the yield component was the district's computer simulation model.

AND WHAT are these worthy alternatives that passed through our secondary screening? They come in several categories — single projects, combinations of two projects, combinations of three projects and combinations of four or more. In the single project category, any size of the new San Clemente Dam greater than 24,000 ac. ft. emerged a winner. To avoid redundancy, we picked the 24,000 ac. ft. and 29,000 ac. ft. sizes. The 24,000 ac. ft. project is the smallest (and least expensive) dam size that meets all the screening standards alone; the 29,000 ac. ft. project is the most cost-effective and provides the most water.

If one combines two projects together, the winning result is a 10,000 ac. ft. new San Clemente Dam plus water from six new wells drilled near Laguna Seca (the Seaside Inland Aquifer.) If one combines three projects together, two winners emerge. The first option is a 21,000 ac. ft. new San Clemente Dam plus a new well in the Coastal Seaside Aquifer plus two new wells in upper Carmel Valley. The second combines a 10,000 ac. ft. dam on Chupines Creek, a tributary to the Carmel River, plus the new Carmel Valley wells plus pumping in the Seaside Inland Aquifer.

The last alternative to pass the secondary screening combines six different projects — pumping from new Coastal Seaside Aquifer, Inland Seaside Aquifer, and Carmel Valley wells plus reclamation of wastewater for golf course irrigation in Del Monte Forest plus excavation of accumulated silt from the existing Los Padres reservoir plus more intensive conservation (mandatory retrofit of plumbing fixtures). This is the so-called "non-dam alternative."

What's in store for our contestants? The six alternatives described above have passed performance standards relating to cost and municipal yield. Part Three adds the environmental component. Computer output for each alternative will be sent to our consulting fishery experts. They will determine how each alternative supports adult and juvenile steelhead, based on river flow at certain critical points and times of year. We will also assess whether enough river flow would occur to support riparian vegetation for erosion control. Flow for vegetation would also provide for recreation/aesthetics.

Another aspect of the third screening is determining the uncertainty associated with each alternative. Some have been well-researched, while others lack important data that proves the project's ability to produce the amount of water we think it will. The alternatives that pass all these tests will be analyzed in much more detail in the EIS. They will be considered serious contestants for the prize of supplying our water. Stay tuned!!

(Editor's note: The Carmel River Water News is a bi-weekly column written by Monterey Peninsula Water Management District staff. Its purpose is to inform Pine Cone readers about district activities relating to the Carmel River and its environs. For more information or suggested topics, readers are invited to contact Henrietta Stern at 649-4866 or P.O. Box 85, Monterey 93940.)

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

*'...be like a good
sounding bell'*

INVOCATION TO THE CARMEL ROTARY CLUB NOVEMBER 4, 1981

Today, on the feast of Carmel's patron saint, San Carlos de Barremeo, we humbly ask thee, oh almighty God, to help us to become aware that they design for the world is love in action and we may strive to give our lives in services to others, unselfishly.

Most members of Carmel Rotary remember with affection the Reverend Father Charles H. "Chuck" Stacy who was assistant priest at All Saints' and an active and involved member of this club.

Several years ago he became pastor of St. Mark's-in-the-Valley, Solvang. Despite the fact that this is a Danish Lutheran enclave, he is now a member of the Solvang-Buellton Split Pea Rotary Club.

Chuck and his parishoners have built a new church at Los Olivos. He sends me his parish bulletin called the "Roar of the Lion" which reports how they have blessed a bell as a memorial to 19-year-old Gordon Thomas Jones, who died Oct. 6.

Bells have a long and honorable tradition in the Church. From early times they rang out for the Angelus; on feast days and festival occasions; to call the faithful to worship and to remind men to pray for the dead.

The Carmel Rotary has always had a presidential bell used to call the meeting to order and to close the weekly sessions. Our bell has had an adventuresome history. It has been hijacked, kidnapped and misappropriated by members with juvenile minds, but despite all these vicissitudes the bell has survived and still rings with authority.

Oh, Lord, help us to be like a good sounding bell, rich-toned, always ringing in tune and never flat, cracked or cacophonous. Finally, oh Lord, when we depart from this vale of tears, may bells toll in sorrow, not ring out in joy. Amen.

CARMEL YOUTH CENTER

By Jeff Bell

Come to a Garden Party

THE CARMEL Youth Council will host a Garden Party on Sunday, Nov. 16 from noon to 4:30 p.m. Everyone is invited. The Carmel Youth Council and volunteers will also be welcoming our new city recreation director — Beth Kastrup on that day.

This is the first opportunity everyone in our community will have to get a peek at what is really happening at our youth center. The youth council is sending out invitations as well as going out into our community and personally inviting everyone to come and participate in the revitalization and renovation of the youth center.

Alan Williams of Carmel Design will display his design for the youth center's future weight/aerobic workout rooms. Williams was referred to the youth center by Mayor Clint Eastwood. Richard Murray, an environmental landscape architect, will display his design of the garden area where a deck, hot tub, bonfire-barbecue pit and use of low-maintenance plants is planned. Murray was referred to the youth center by Ron Faia, CYC board president.

Also referred by Faia is architect Russ Maisley, who will present his design/remodel of the youth center restaurant and kitchen area. All presentations begin at 1 p.m. that day. (Special thanks to Nancy Marzi for her heartfelt invitation design — Rapid Printers for printing the invitations and Automatic Mailing Service for processing them!)

Last week's Halloween Parade was stupendous! The streets were filled with onlookers and marchers. The Halloween Dance/Party for sixth-seventh- and eighth-grade students was a real hit, and I want to thank all those people who helped make it that way. The Carmel High School JV cheerleaders and Marilyn Stainbrook deserves a big hand for representing the youth center in the parade.

Also worthy of special recognition is Vince Hake, Randy Klafen, Addison Lent, Jon Nunemaker, and Adam Jardine for helping out at Carpenter Hall. Judie Ciesla, Debra Sketchly, Lou Langley, Sandy Dueker, Susan Faia and all others deserve a big thanks for their help at the youth center's Halloween dance. Thank you all for making it such a great success!

The youth center offers a variety of entertainment and recreation for students in the Carmel Unified School District attending grades six through 12. We have ping-pong, pool, video games, foos ball, big screen TV, and a world famous snack bar.

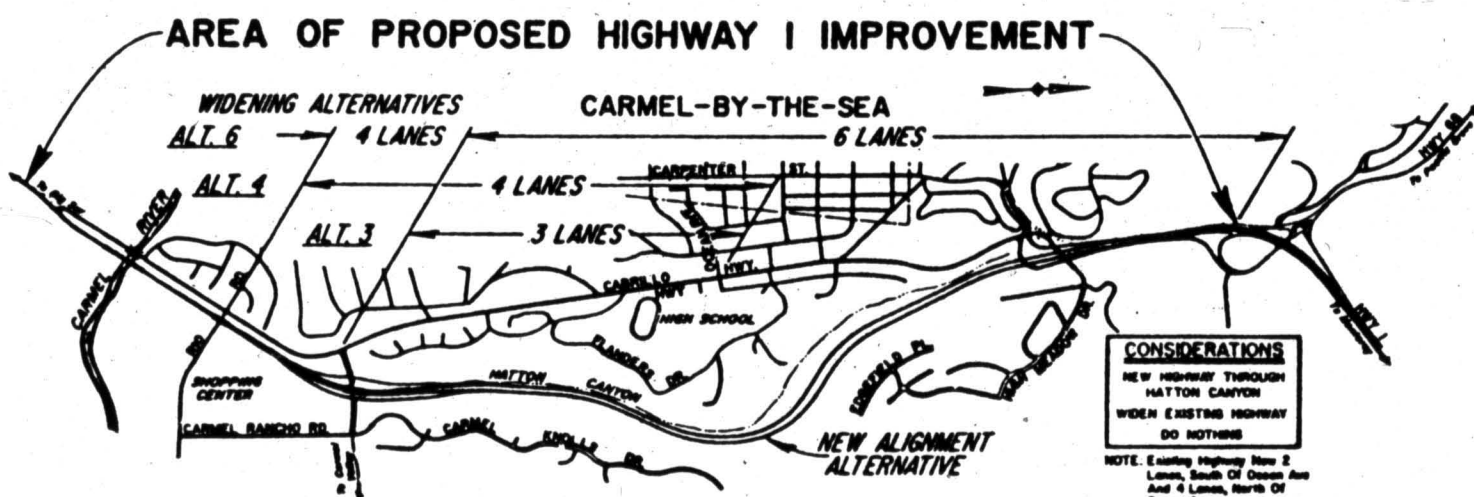

Our hours are: 3 to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday, noon to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday. Any interested party who would like to sponsor, support or inquire about our youth council activities please contact Tom Faia at Vintage Real Estate, 624-1444.

Lastly, the trivia question of the week: What was the name of Mr. Ed's owner?

BUSINESS BEAT

By Nancy Hills

Allen strikes again

BUD "IT'S Bud's Pub" Allen has sold more than scotch and waters lately.

Carmel's foremost candidate for best dressed restaurateur and barkeep (gotta love those plaids) should soon be out of the hostelry business.

After 20 years of proprietorship, Allen has sold the 19-room Sundial Lodge on Monte Verde next to Carmel City Hall. Of course, all is not finished yet. It is in escrow to a Japanese group based in San Francisco called Zenuemon, Sugita, Higuchi and Co.

"The Japanese take very good care of things," Allen assured, "so it might be better off than when I had it."

The sale should be completed by Dec. 4, Allen said, and was handled by no less than Allen's son, Tim Allen of Bock Realty.

Longtime residents — or even relatively short-time Carmelites — might remember that Allen sold another landmark, La Playa Hotel, to the Cope family a couple of years ago. After that, The Pine Cone readers enjoyed the "pink paint" controversy for months. Let's hope the Sundial owners keep their brushes clean.

Allen denies rumors he is selling It's Bud's Pub in Su Vecino Court on Lincoln or Dolores (depends on which way you approach it.) The Sundial was sold because of taxes and he wants to move to Europe for awhile. Don't bid bon voyage quite yet. That's in the future, after he finishes his stint as Carmel Rotary Club president.

Of course, in the meantime, he continues his Queen Mary cruise contest, designed to build up clientele in the pub from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

During those hours, the pub and restaurant hands out raffle-style tickets for a cruise to London aboard the Queen Mary with a five-day deluxe hotel stay while there and return trip on the Concorde. The drawing is scheduled for Dec. 26.

It's all going very well, Allen said, and you have to take him with you. That would be interesting, though. London with Bud Allen must be a whole different experience.

GONE

If you're taking a stroll down San Carlos near Sixth, you might notice there is an empty location where the Loren Adams Gallery used to be. He's packed up his bags and gone, after a few months of eviction proceedings. Artist Adams was often seen with Jack West, who also was evicted from his 20th Century Masters location on Mission, more than a month ago. Both are gone, but surely not forgotten. Neither dropped by to tell me where they've gone.

TILLING THE EARTH

Shelly Schachter, owner/chef of Shelly's Kitchen in Carmel Valley Village, has branched out his enterprises. In addition to his restaurant, he's spreading the word on how to grow a garden that can also end up on the dinner table.

Edible Landscaping is the name of his new endeavor which is to teach people how to grow and care for fruit trees, vegetable, herbs and all sorts of foods right in their own backyard.

Schachter has a garden of his own — 10,000 square feet, he said — where he grows many of the foods he uses in his restaurant, including 30 different varieties of fruit.

Clients can learn "from scratch," he said, everything from pruning to harvesting. Though it can all seem "overwhelming to a beginner," he said, "it can be learned very quickly." Hillsides even can be used through terracing, which, if done properly, actually can help hold the soil in place, he claims.

"I just want to spread my passion for growing fruits and vegetables," Schachter explained as the reason for his new business. It's an activity where "people can get some beautiful landscapes and something to eat besides."

PERFORMANCE THAT INCREASES YOUR PULSE. AT A PRICE THAT WON'T MAKE YOUR BLOOD BOIL.

These days, many people measure a car's worth in dollars—instead of sense. Which means instead of getting a lot of car for the money, they're merely paying a lot of money for a car.

Not so when you buy a Volvo 700 Series Turbo.

For your money, you get a car that's been lauded by Car and Driver for its "...pavement-thumping" power.

A car that's equipped with the luxury features found in cars in a much pricier price range.

And a car that offers "On Call."™ The three-year roadside assistance plan that's available free of charge 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

So come in and test drive a Volvo 700 Series Turbo. You'll find its performance uplifting...at a price that's down-to-earth.

Leadership Monterey plays a little

FIRST OF all, when you get a group of civic leaders and potential leaders together there is a built-in-business-like buzz. The first fund-raiser for the 5-year-old Leadership Monterey Peninsula (LMP) started off in high gear and they are looking forward to more community involvement.

The purpose of LMP is to ensure that future leaders of our community have the knowledge, opportunity and encouragement they will need to assume key roles in the civic and professional life of the Monterey Peninsula.

The site of LMP's first social venture — the Grand Ballroom at the Hyatt Regency Monterey. The event — a Holiday Fashion Show and Luncheon. Phyllis Hubbard, Carmel Valley's fashion coordinator extraordinaire, was commentator for the latest styles from Carmel Plaza merchants.

To begin on a pleasant note Judy Cole, Plaza PR and promotions director, presented a $1,000 check to Richard Rudisill, LMP president. Then Lee Pease drew names for door prize winners. Plaza gift certificate winners were Christine Hall, Lorraine Garcia, Roberta Matheson, E.T. Price, Phyllis Marrotta, and Trisha Porter. Ruth Dean won two nights at the Monterey Bay Inn and Jill Watson ditto for Doubletree Inn.

Artist Shirley Holt did a Curoc tray that was given to Helen Lucky.

Phyllis' pro models pranced on a runway lined with mums to the music of the Roger Eddy Group. There were fashions to fit every holiday mood. Soft drapey leather for men and

HOLLYWOOD COSTUME BALL

Americans love movies...the glamour, the stories, the characters, and the stars. It seems everyone likes to be someone else for a few hours and what is more thrilling than spending a night as a favorite movie star or movie character?

The Hyatt Regency Monterey Grand Ballroom was turned into miniature moviedom for the Hollywood Halloween Costume Ball given to benefit the Monterey Film Festival.

Friends came with friends or to meet friends (if they could detect them under grotesque masks and enveloping costumes with another personality temporarily trapped inside). There was an "Arabian Nights" set, a "Blue Lagoon" set and a corner with black haunted houses and white ghosts.

Music by Nite Heat and The Young Presidents enticed to the dance floor such characters as Dracula, Charlie Chaplin, Stan Laurel, Marcus Antonius, Cleopatra, Minnie and Mickey Mouse, Donald and Daisy Duck, Lucille Ball, Omar Sharif and others familiar to movie buffs. Shown on a big screen above the dance floor were the original 1936 Dracula film and Cabinet of Dr. Caligari.

The denouement came at midnight with the announcement of the costume winners. With such criteria as personality, authenticity, creativity in costume design, and originality and personality in character portrayal, the judges came up with the following winners. Best female costume Carole Johnson (as Ace Frehley from Kiss in Concert), best male costume Adam Trotsky (as Steve Martin in The Jerk), and best couple Linda Catuna and Maria Dakis (as Tweedle Dee and Tweedle Dum).

Prizes were weekends in Hollywood and in the San Francisco Hyatt. Sponsors for the ball were the Hyatt Regency, KMBY Radio and the film festival. Donations were made by Peninsula Welding, Creative Spirit, Hacienda Hay and Seed from the pumpkins, which the Carmel High School students carved so dramatically.

Kathleen Wolf was party coordinator. Committee heads were Louis LaBarbara, Charles Gruwell, Tracey Buswell, Christopher Murray, Joan Zeigler, Ed Hunter, David Watkins and David Bean, executive director of the Monterey Film Festival.

ON THE FALL HORIZON

The Zonta Club plans a Dinner-Casino Night Nov. 8 in the Hilton Resort of Monterey to raise money to shelter runaway children. With federal funds cut off, Larry Stone of Community Human Services has been able to keep shelters available only with help of the Zontas. For $5,000 he is able to provide safe places for six youngsters. Limited to 200, the casino tickets are $20 per person, with a social hour at 6 p.m., dinner at 7 and casino at 8.

The Sheraton Ballroom will be turned into the Cotton Club for the second time to benefit the Rape Crisis Center. On Nov. 15 from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. The age of guys, dolls, bootleg booze, speakeasies and jazz rhythms will come alive. Mobsters will be scanning guests at the door. Come in '20s raiment for dancing to the music of five bands. Tickets are $10 at the door or in advance at the Sheraton concierge desk.

Black Tie Bingo will be sponsored by the Arthritis Foundation in Elks Lodge, Monterey, at 6 p.m. Nov. 15 at $50 each. Classical guitar music will set the social hour tone, a silent auction with such items as a weekend at the Fairmont Hotel (or is that St. Gregory's?), followed by dinner catered by Simple Elegance. Cash prizes go to bingo winners.

For early Christmas shopping there are fairs and bazaars on Nov. 14, 15, and 16. Christmas-by-the-Bay-Bazaar at Del Monte Center will hold a preview party 5 to 8 p.m. Friday the 14. It is open to the public for $2.50 each. The Clark Foundation sponsors this annual event to help generate "profits for the non-profits" in a festive, gift-shopping atmosphere with agencies realizing 100 percent profit on sales. Gus Arriola will be there to sign his Monterey Film Festival posters. Admission is free on sale days. Saturday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday noon to 5 p.m.

Friends of Hospice will hold its Christmas Fair 10 a.m. to 4

C. Mark Thomas

Private services and cremation at the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea was followed by inurnment at the Monterey City Cemetery for longtime peninsula restaurant, hotel developer and civic leader C. Mark Thomas, who died at his home in Carmel Valley after a long illness. He was 75.

Born in San Francisco Aug. 4, he came to the Monterey Peninsula in 1946 and began a long and illustrious career in the hotel and restaurant business.

In the mid-1940's Mr. Thomas purchased a part of the Highlands Inn, but later sold it and went on to manage the Clark Hotel in Stockton and the Marysville Hotel in Marysville. At one point he was associated with the Sir Francis Drake Hotel in San Francisco and was manager of the University Club in San Francisco.

Mr. Thomas' first venture on the Peninsula was the Heartstone restaurant in Carmel, which he built in 1950 and managed until 1965. In 1955, he built the Mark Thomas Inn, a portion of which still exists as part of the Hyatt Regency in Monterey. Ten years later he bought The Outrigger restaurant on Cannery row, which is still owned and operated by the Thomas family.

Considered a landmark, the Mark Thomas Inn was the first resort-style hotel to be built on the peninsula and initial plans called for 175 rooms, a swimming pool, a restaurant and bar in a California ranch style on a three-acre tract. The inn became internationally known and was given a four-star rating by the Mobil Gasoline Travel Guide in 1968, one of the only 50 hotels in the United States to receive the rating.

In 1967, Mr. Thomas was named vice president of the Northern California Hotel Association. He was also active in several civic organizations in the area and in 1975 served as chairman of the Greater Monterey Bay Area Chapter's Hope Chest fund-raising drive for the National Multiple Sclerosis Society.

An avid golfer, he was a member of the Cypress Point Club, Old Capital Club, Beach and Tennis Club, Bohemian Club in San Francisco and a found member of the Pacheco Club.

He served in the Army in World War II, and was a founding member of Hospital Entertainment Liaison Program (HELP), which arranged visits and programs at veterans hospitals.

Survivors include his wife, Jean; three daughters, Karen Moore of Laguna Beach, Julie Obering of Wilson, Wyo., and Sherry Thomas of Carmel Valley; three sisters, Elizabeth Crary of Atherton, Phoebe Force of Lafayette and Aimee Belle Brenner of Palo Alto, and six grandchildren.

The family suggests contributions to the Alzheimer's Share and Assist Center, 1295 La Salle Ave., Seaside.

Helen Stott Bratton

Memorial services took place Oct. 10 at Monterey Peninsula Unitarian Church and cremation was followed by inurnment in El Carmelo Cemetery for Helen Stott Bratton, a resident of Carmel for 30 years who died Oct. 5 at Carmel Valley Manor. She was 87.

She was born in Albany, N.Y., July 17, 1899. Before moving to Carmel, she lived in St. Louis, Mo., where she was past president of the Independent Artists' Association. In Carmel she was Monterey's Poet Laureate in 1962-63 and authored three books, It's Morning Again, The Amber Flask, and Only in Time.

Survivors include three daughters, Joyce Derlacki of Mercer Island, Wash.; Betty Smith of St. Louis County, Mo.; and Carol Ann Lienhard of Houston, Tex.; nine grandchildren and seven great grandchildren. Her husband, George died in 1971.

Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements. The family suggests memorial contributions to the library at Carmel Valley Manor.

H. Ward Lindbeck

No funeral services were held for H. Ward Lindbeck a Carmel resident for 13 years who died Oct. 18 at Monterey Convalescent Hospital. He was 58.

Born in Olympia, Wash., Nov. 23, 1927, he graduated from the University of Oregon. He was a freelance writer for newspapers and trade journals for 25 years.

Survivors include his wife, Judith Hihuchi Lindbeck, and two sons, Michael Lindbeck of Kaneohe, Hawaii; and Eric Scott of Tariffville, Conn.

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea in Pacific Grove, with ashes scattered at sea.

The family suggests memorial contributions to a favorite animal welfare society.

Muriel G. Oliver

Private cremation took place at Mains Funeral Parlor of Alexandria, Va. and inurnment took place at El Carmelo Cemetery in Pacific Grove for Muriel G. Oliver, who died Oct. 1 at Leewood Convalescent Home in Fairfax, Va. She was 72.

Born in Berkeley, May 15, 1914, she lived in Carmel for 11 years.

Graduated from the San Francisco School of Fine Arts, she had worked as a professional portrait artist and illustrator in Berkeley.

Survivors include a son, Barrett Gamble of Pacific Grove; a daughter, Donna Gamble of Alexandria, Va., and four grandchildren. Mains Funeral Parlor took charge of all arrangements.

Edith Bishop

Private family services took place in Oregon for Edith Bishop a Carmel resident for 28 years who died Oct. 1. She was 93.

Born in Parry Sound, Ontario, Canada, May 26, 1893, Mrs. Bishop lived in Detroit from 1924 to 1957 with her husband, William D. Bishop, who is now deceased.

She moved to Carmel in 1957 to be with her son's family, living at Hacienda Carmel until 1985.

Survivors include, a grandson, Michael Cook of Portland, Ore., and two great grandchildren.

Ralph H. Heppe

A private burial took place Oct. 15 at the El Carmelo Cemetery in Pacific Grove for Ralph Harold Heppe, who a 26 year Carmel resident died Oct. 11 in Carmel Valley Rest Home. He was 93.

Born in Mount Pleasant, Iowa, Feb. 2, 1893, he moved to Carmel from Los Altos in 1960 and was the editor for The Associated Press for 36 years, retiring in 1954.

He earned a bachelor's degree from Kansas State University and was a veteran of World War I. He was a member of the Monterey Peninsula Country Club and had been the editor of the country club newsletter.

Survivors include a son, R. Richard Heppe of Pasadena; three grandchildren and four great grandchildren. His wife Hester died in 1979.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

William J. Ball

Memorial services took place Oct. 22 at the Peninsula Baptist Church for William J. Ball, a Pebble Beach resident who died Oct. 11 at Community Hospital. He was 76.

Born in Chicago on Dec. 29, 1909, he worked for Brink's Inc., the armored car company, for 27 years until he retired in 1963.

He was an Army veteran of World War II and a member of American Legion Post 41, the Peninsula Baptist Church, and a past member of Sons in Retirement of Pebble Beach.

Survivors include his wife, Anne; a son, Richard of Fon du Lac, Wis.; two brothers, Ed of Sunnyvale and Harry; three sisters, Florence Russell of San Ramon, Dorothy Leithman of Santa Clara and Marge Hansen of Chicago.

Cremation did take place at the Monterey City Cemetery, with ashes scattered at sea. The Mission Mortuary was in charge of all arrangements.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Monterey County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Because of the growing recognition of mental health problems affecting the nation's elderly, particularly depression, an increasing number of psychiatrists are specializing in the treatment of older patients. Among the major teaching medical hospitals offering such specialized training for psychiatrists are the UCLA Medical Center in Los Angeles, Mt. Sinai Medical Center in New York and the University of South Florida Medical Center in Tampa.

For the past 30 years Medic Alert, a non-profit organization, has been making and distributing special bracelets and necklaces. More than one million Americans now use them. The bracelets contain vital information about the wearer's medical condition and note whom to contact in an emergency. A one-time fee of $20 includes the bracelet or necklace, an identification card, and an annually updated medical history of the wearer. At home with Big Sur artist Lynn Jays

By ANNE PAPINEAU

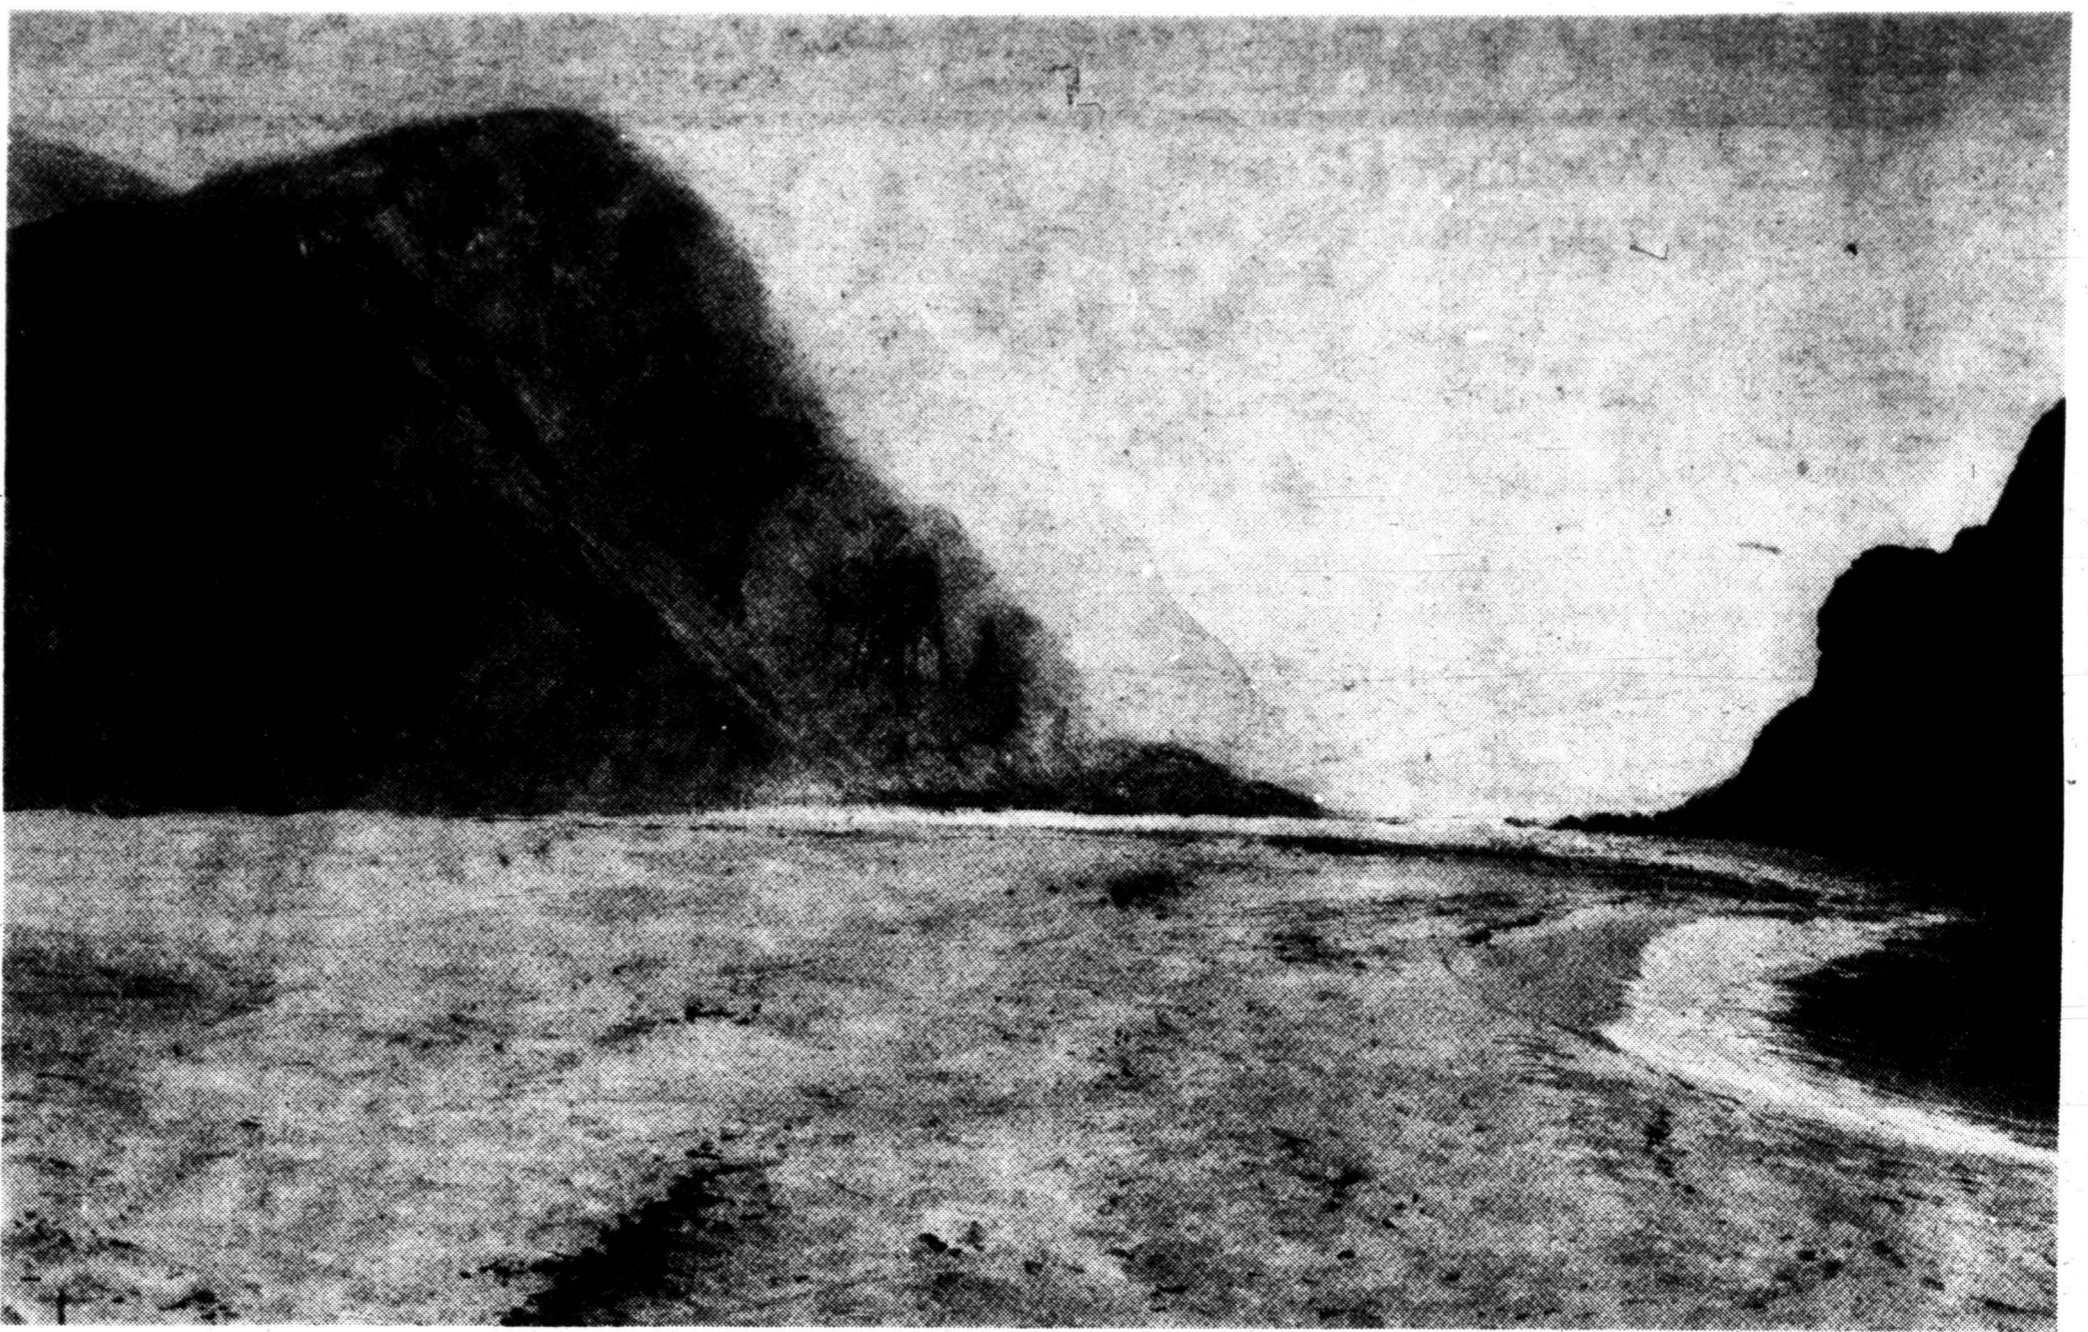

TAKING HER CUE from the migrating geese, Lynn Jays has returned to Big Sur.

Her decisions, her home and her art are molded by nature. From Jays' house on a hillside in Partington Canyon, Big Sur, she can view the rocky coastline that stretches north and south, the thin thread that is Highway 1 and the fog-touched mountains in the distance.

"I wake up early, take breakfast down to the studio, read for an hour, meditate for about an hour and paint during the midday light," explained the green-eyed artist. Despite the early hour and the floor-to-ceiling walls of glass, Jays' living room is warm, heated by a crackling eucalyptus log in the fireplace.

Essentially self-taught and an artist since childhood, Jays has resided in Southern California, in Washington State, and other places, but the Monterey Peninsula — specifically Big Sur — exerts a special hold on her.

"Could anything be more stimulating than this place?" Jays queried. "I am a constant observer of the light. I like buildings, architecture, but I just feel Nepenthe and the

SEPTEMBER FULL MOON, Pfeiffer Beach, is representative of the Big Sur scenes depicted by resident artist Lynn Jays. She said she is sensitive to the quality of light, and recently toured the American Southwest keeping an illustrated journal that included visual commentary on light and color.

painting — because "It is, after all, a messy business."

She worked in a Carmel gallery. She carved signs and cared for her collies. But the land kept interrupting.

"That gives you the breakthrough when you have the time and the place to paint. So many people paint in a corner of the kitchen or in the bedroom," Jays explained.

Jays' oil paintings reflect a Big Sur of many moods. The sun and sometimes the moon hover in different positions in the sky. Days both sunny and cloudy are preserved on her canvases.

Jays recalls one storm in which 80-mile-per-hour winds shattered the windows. She loved it.

"I want to capture the feeling of the land, get people to say, 'Let's don't change it,'" she said.

Jays' new project is "putting her paintings into print." Her print series and note cards are sold at the Phoenix Shop near Nepenthe, the Big Sur bazaar, the gift shops at the Big Sur Lodge and Ventana, and in Carmel at the Carmel Bay Company and Carmel Poster Company.

"I believe that in the art world in Carmel there is competition," Jays noted. "But I don't feel competition. I'm not trying to make a splash in the art world. At first I had difficulty with what you might call the left-brain activities — ordering the mattes, doing the paperwork. But I also get some joy out of it."

"I'm 36 miles from Carmel — a thriving art center and I don't want to be part of it. I don't criticize it. I go to town just to take care of business. I still try to go to town no more than twice a month."

It's not so much an antagonism toward civilization that prompts Jays' apathy toward urban regions. She just seems hopelessly in love with the Big Sur country. She said she grew up in a Midwestern farming community, "Left to go to the big city then heard the call again to go back."

"Big Sur takes you in or it doesn't. It's a very difficult environment. One hundred feet off this road in every direction and it's wilderness."

"I never feel the isolation. As an artist and a nature lover, I thrive on it. I love the feeling of being one with nature."

Big Sur and her collies are the constants. "I'll always have two collies. It's wonderful to see their different personalities."

Jays keeps a special, small room in her house — one that resembles a shrine to found treasures. Here rest gifts from the land: delicate seal and otter skulls, bleached white; a fierce bobcat skull; crab claws; seal spines and other finds.

"I consider these gifts when I'm walking and I find a feather. I have many books and I can't find a word for people who collect feathers," she observed.

Her studio, once a gardener's shed, is alive with painted boards and canvases.

"I'm particular to roads. My plan in the future is to have a whole series of roads and headlands," she explained.

She views the life of an artist as "an almost magical existence," and speaks with fondness of a September journey with a friend through the American Southwest. Jays kept an illustrated journal during the trip, and describes the experience as "the best lesson I had in seeing."

"We drove through Yosemite, across Nevada to Zion, Utah and down to Zuni, N.M. From the moment we hit the desert our theme was to be open, to see — to see the light, the color. Everything is soft in the desert, even though you might have the mountains in the distance. There's that haze, that lavender haze, like spindrift off the ocean here. Just since coming back, I wonder if my painting will show it."

Back at her Partington Canyon home, Jays said she tries to paint each day.

She also strives to keep in touch with the land, to explore Big Sur on foot.

"The last great landslide was absolutely wonderful," Jays pointed out. "Big Sur was in its glory. The wildlife came back in abundance. It was what it must have felt like 100 years ago. I really feel humanity encroaching."

buildings around here are a complement to the landscape. I've always painted landscapes."

Originals and reproductions of Jays' landscapes share wall space with prints by other artists and the ever-changing, window-framed view of the outdoors.

On a table is displayed a quote from another Big Sur artist, Henry Miller:

"Whoever uses the spirit that is in him creatively is an artist. To make living itself an art, that is the goal."

Jays noted that for some time she avoided

LYNN JAYS, who resides in a cliffside home in Partington Canyon, said she is here to stay. Jays now markets prints of her paintings in post card and poster form at shops in Big Sur and Carmel. (Holly McFarland photograph).

COLLIES AND THE Big Sur countryside are the constants in the life of artist Lynn Jays. Jays strives to paint each day, capturing on canvas the mountains, headlands and beaches that surround her. (Holly McFarland photograph).

Chamber Music Society presents Guarneri String Quartet

THE CHAMBER MUSIC Society of the Monterey Peninsula is pleased to present the Guarneri String Quartet at Sunset Theater, San Carlos and Ninth, Carmel at 8 p.m., on Monday, November 10.

The quartet with Arnold Steinhardt, violin; John Dalley, violin; Michael Tree, viola; David Soyer, cello; will play Shostakovich's Quartet No. 7; Beethoven's Quartet in B-flat Major, Opus 18, No. 6; and Smetana's Quartet No. 1 in E minor, "From My Life."

The Guarneri String Quartet has consistently been hailed as the world's premiere quartet and in its 21 years has had no change in personnel. The 22nd season of 100 concerts will include two tours of Europe and a transcontinental tour of the United States and Canada. In New York, the quartet will continue its annual series at Alice Tully Hall, the Metropolitan Museum of Art and at the 92nd Street Y.

The Guarneri has toured New Zealand, Japan, has made three tours of Australia, and participated in the major international music festivals. Since 1979 it has performed annually at the June Music Festival in Albuquerque.

The quartet is on the faculty of the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia and at the University of Maryland. All members have had major solo careers and, in addition to their work as a quartet, continue to appear as soloists or in musical collaborations with others. The Guarneri String Quartet's recordings are exclusively on RCA Red Seal. Members of the quartet have also recorded individually on a variety of labels.

Violinist Arnold Steinhardt, a native

Californian, studied with Ivan Galamian at the Curtis Institute of Music and later with Joseph Szigeti. He is a winner of the Leventritt Award and made his solo debut at the age of 14 with the Los Angeles Philharmonic. Steinhardt has appeared as soloist with the orchestras of Philadelphia, New York and Cleveland. His violin is a Lorenzo Storioni (Cremona).

Violinist John Dalley studied with Efrem Zimbalist at the Curtis Institute of Music and made his concert debut at the age of 14. He has toured widely throughout Europe and Russia and, prior to joining the quartet, served on the faculty of the Oberlin Conservatory and was artist-in-residence at the University of Illinois. Dalley plays on a Nicolas Lupot (Paris 1810).

Michael Tree, violist and violinist, studied with Efrem Zimbalist, Lea Luboshutz and Veda Reynolds at the Curtis Institute of Music, and with Samuel Applebaum. He made his Carnegie Hall debut at the age of 20 and has made solo appearances with the Philadelphia, Baltimore and Los Angeles Orchestras, and at the Spoleto Festival. Tree's viola is a Dominicus Busan (Venice 1750).

Cellist David Soyer studied with Diran Alexanian, Emanuel Feuermann and Pablo Casals.

Memberships in the Chamber Music Society are still available. Single tickets are $10 at the door prior to the concert. For more information call 625-2212.

Washington Ballet to perform

THE CARMEL FESTIVAL of Dance will present the Washington Ballet at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 12 in Sunset Theater.

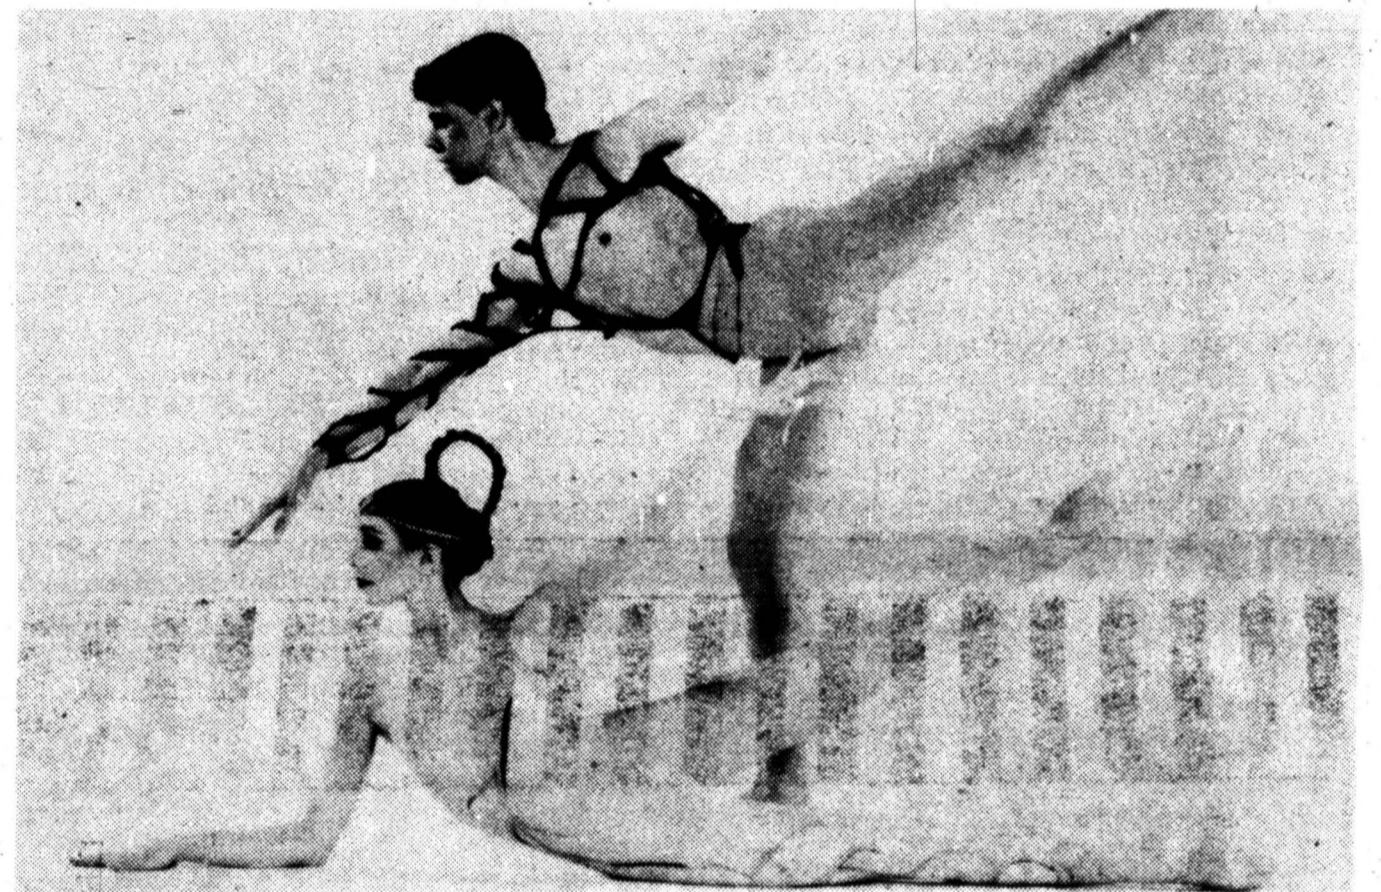

The Washington School of the Ballet, co-founded in 1944 by Mary Day and the late Lisa Gardiner, has been a cultural asset to the nation's capitol for many years. In 1961 Mary Day visited the Soviet Union as a guest of the country under the sponsorship of the United States State Department leaders. Her observations of the teaching methods of the world renowned Russian Academie of Ballet resulted in the establishment of a school patterned after this system of education.

The Academy of the Washington Ballet was the first such institution in the United States offering a combined curriculum of dance and academics. From 1962 to 1977, many of America's finest dancers performing in major companies today were trained at the Academy of the Washington Ballet.

In 1976 the Washington Ballet was founded as a fully professional company primarily to showcase these budding, talented, young artists. The intent was to combine the school's classical training with the challenge of the best contemporary choreography to create a unique ensemble. Having heard of Choo San Goh, a young dancer from the Dutch National Ballet and an emerging choreographer, Day invited him to Washington to help her with the newly formed company.

For their engagement at Sunset Theater they shall include works of Choo San Goh to music of Francis Poulenc and Ernest Bloch; Judith Jamison's Time Out which was premiered by the company last April and La Fille Mal Gardee pas de deux choreographed by Fernand Nault after the original.

Reserved seating is available at the director's office of the Sunset Center. Tickets are $10 and $12.50. For information, call 624-3996.

ONSTAGE

Sunrise at Campobello

In support of Rotary International's Polio Plus campaign to rid the world of polio by 1990, The York School Drama Club will present a benefit reading of Dore Schary's Sunrise at Campobello at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Nov. 7. First produced in 1958, Sunrise at Campobello is the award-winning play that dramatized Franklin Roosevelt's battle to overcome polio, leading to his "Happy Warrior" speech delivered when he nominated Al Smith at the Democratic National Convention in 1924.

The reading will be presented in The Bishop Library on the campus, located at 9501 Monterey-Salinas Highway at York Road. The York School will provide 100 seats at a donation of $25 each. All proceeds will go to Polio Plus. For tickets or further information, call 372-7338.

Lingo America

Poet and storyteller Taelen Thomas appears in this one-man production that reflects wisecracks and attitudes of American writers. Lingo America, a presentation of the Poetic Drama Institute, includes a tale of the Dempsey/Frisco fight, the oral tradition of the American hobo and cowboy, and the truth about Clementine.

It plays 8 p.m. Tuesdays, Nov. 11 and 18, at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center, 320 Hoffman (at Lighthouse) in New Monterey. Tickets are $5. For reservations call 649-6852 or 649-5561.

Fifth of July

A group of former student activists reflect on the changes in their lives and attitudes since leaving college in Lanford Wilson's Fifth of July, continuing at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center.

Dan Gotch directs the play, which features Jim Webber as Ken and Ron Cohen as his lover, Jed. They are visited by Ken's sister, June (Mickie Mosley Braun) and her teenage daughter (Danielle Walkup). The cast also features Dorian Ellis, David Miller, Florence Mason and James Brady.

Fifth of July will be staged at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays until Nov. 22. Sunday matinees will be staged at 2 p.m. on Nov. 9 and 16.

Ticket prices on Fridays and Saturdays are $7.50 general, $6 for students and persons over age 55. On Thursdays and Sundays tickets are $6.50 general and $5 for students and seniors over 55. Due to sexual themes and strong language, the production is recommended for adults. In addition, because of the staging of the production, there will be no late seating. Reservations: 649-5561 or 649-6852.

One-Act Play Festival

A three-week one-act play festival opens Thursday, Nov. 6 at The Western Stage, headquartered in Hartnell College, 156 Homestead Ave., Salinas.

Staged Thursday through Saturday, Nov. 6-8, will be William Saroyan's Once Around the Block, directed by Rich Fisher and featuring Richard Howes, William King, Kristen Bernard and Henry Guevarra. The evening will also feature Day of the Races by Julie Jensen, directed by Gerre Maillet and featuring Kathleen Schilling and Dianne Busch. Completing the evening will be Blind Date, written by Horton Foote, directed by Flip Baldwin and featuring Linda Hickman, Rollee Dick, Renee Stone and Michael Jackson.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Tickets are $7.50 on Thursdays, $8.50 Fridays and Saturdays. Children and senior citizens receive $1 off admission. For reservations, call 375-2111 or 758-1221.

Call Me Madam

An updated for the '80s version of the Irving Berlin comedy with music, Call Me Madam, will be presented Thursday and Friday by students of Santa Catalina School.

The plot revolves around Sally Adams, American ambassador to the mythical European principality of Lichtenburg. Director Rosamond Goodrich Zanides has modernized Sally's telephone calls from the president to reflect current events and personalities.

Admission is free to both performances, staged 8 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 6 and 1 p.m. Friday, Nov. 7 in the Performing Arts Center at the school. Santa Catalina School is on Mark Thomas Drive in Monterey.

Candida

The Staff Players Repertory Company opens its new season with Candida, Shaw's answer to A Doll's House. First presented in 1898, Candida provides Shaw's view of a happy marriage and what makes it work. A young poet then appears and views the entire matter with different eyes.

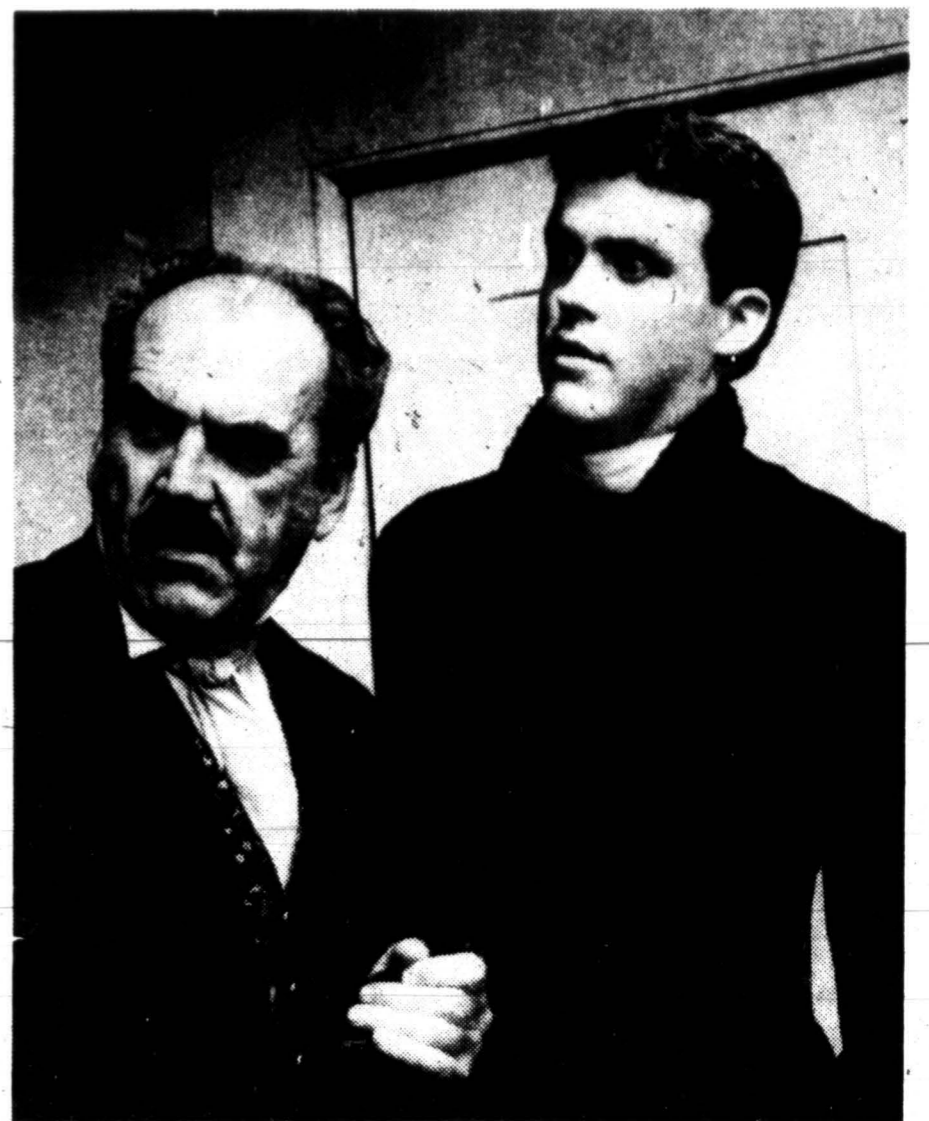

Philip Clarkson portrays the Socialist preacher, James Morell. His wife, Candida, is played by Manuela Shaw. The young poet, Eugene Marchbanks, is portrayed by Norman Stottmeister.

Marcia Gambrell Hovick directs Candida. It will play at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and 2:30 p.m. Sundays at the Indoor Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel. The run will continue through Nov. 22. Tickets are $7 for adults and $5 for senior citizens and full-time students. For reservations, call 624-1531.

Follies

Follies, a musical by James Goldman and Stephen Sondheim, continues its run at The Wharf Theater in Monterey. Directed by Larry Ayo, Follies is a celebration of the present that confronts the past. The musical builds upon the reunion of two former Follies showgirls and their husbands, each a former stage door johnny. Their party chatter gives way to deeper reflection and confrontation with personal, self-deluding "follies."

Follies will be staged at 8:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 8 p.m. Sundays through Nov. 16. Tickets are $10 and $8. The theater is on Old Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey. Reservations: 372-2882.

Ambivalent to antics

NEITHER THE BURGESS (Alan Smith) nor the smug cunty Lexy Mill (Donnie Reynolds) can abide the antics of a poet in George Bernard Shaw's *Candida, continuing in the Indoor Forest Theater, Carmel.

It Had to Be You

It Had to Be You, a comedy which originally starred its authors, Renee Taylor and Joseph Bologna, continues at the Studio Theatre Restaurant, Dolores between Ocean and Seventh in Carmel.

Roselle Winfield and Dick Vreeland portray, respectively, Theda Blau, a failed actress, health food nut, analyst and would-be playwright who wants to find love and success in New York, and Vito Pignoli, a hugely successful TV commercial director. By holding him hostage in her apartment on a snowy Christmas Eve, she somehow manages to convince him to be her partner — both in matrimony and marriage.

It Had to Be You runs Thursdays through Sundays until Nov. 29, with dinner at 7 p.m. and curtain at 8:30 p.m., except Sundays, when times are one hour earlier. Student, military and senior citizen rates are available Sundays. Tickets are $26.50 for dinner and show, exclusive of tax and gratuity. Tickets: 624-1661.

On the Rio Grande

A Western-themed melodrama written around 1880, On the Rio Grande tells of a crooked ranger who tries to frame his former boss' son.

Curtain time at California's First Theatre is 8:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays through November. The theater, the oldest in the state, is on Scott and Pacific streets in Monterey.

Tickets are $5 for adults, $4 for seniors and teens and $3 for children 12 and younger. For information, call 375-4916 between 1 and 5 Wednesdays and Thursdays and between 1 p.m. and show time Fridays and Saturdays.

Peninsula playwright has learned to create opportunity

By ANNE PAPINEAU

LIKE THE CHARACTERS given life in her plays, peninsula playwright Jean Ackermann is something of a pioneer.

Ackermann was the first playwright-in-residence appointed by the Western Stage of Hartnell College. The appointment, made last fall and due to conclude at year's close, will bear theatrical fruit with the Nov. 13-15 staging of An Ackermann Sampler at Hartnell. The Western Stage, in operation year-round since last fall, will draw from four of Ackermann's works for the weekend performance: Auld Lang Syne, Train of Events, Stand-off at Bear Valley and Lydia's Sure Cure.

"The interesting thing I love about theater is it's kind of an adventure still, it's like pioneering," observed Ackermann, a Pacific Grove resident for 10 years. "You create your own environment and opportunities."

Ackermann has been writing plays since her college years. She attended Barnard and Radcliffe, and holds a master's degree in drama from Stanford and a doctorate from Claremont Graduate School.

A member of the Dramatists Guild since 1966, Ackermann for many years worked not in the world of theater but of multi-national corporations.

"I received my doctorate in intercultural education," she explained. "I used plays and skits to teach people who were going to Asia to work to learn key differences between our cultures. They needed to learn about pace, to proceed in business slowly and the importance of the person as opposed to the job or project. I taught protocol, rules of other cultures."

"We're a whiz-bang culture. Each country has its flavor and ethos. I think it would be such a help if we had more drama about that," she added.

Intercultural education provided Ackermann with insight she could use in her favored occupation: playwrighting.

"I loved working with the multinationals, doing the skits and acting out crisis situations, role playing to make a point," she said. Ackermann has been able to put this experience to work in several plays. Auld Lang Syne is an Ackermann tragicomedy about aging. Within its nursing home setting reside and work people whose actions express different attitudes toward aging.

The Excursion (Train of Events), the subject of an informal reading by The Western Stage ensemble, is described by its author as "toe-stubbing on Asian customs."

She said she gathered "the seeds of the characters" when residing with a host family in Sri Lanka. "It's one of my favorite plays because it depicts a whole new milieu."

Ackermann said she felt the bite of the playwrighting bug as a child.

"I think it started when my father told me bedtime stories that he'd made up," she quipped.

Much of her career has been devoted to communications and to intercultural relations. The author of numerous articles, Ackermann was a staff writer for Popular Science and wrote critical essays on media of the third world for International Development Review.

The bite left by the theater bug remained, however, and festered until Ackermann devoted her attention to it.

"There's something about theater — a magic about it. All of a sudden a little concept of life is up there that you've created. People slaved 60 hours a week to make your dream come true on stage," Ackermann said. "Your dreams may help others. At least they're up there. That's a great reward."

DRAMATIST, JOURNALIST Jean Ackermann of Pacific Grove will see a selection of her plays produced by the Western Stage at Hartnell College. Ackermann is the first playwright-in-residence at the year-round theater company.

Ackermann's plays seem to possess lives of their own.

"A play comes to me, knocks on the door and says 'I'm not a very long play.' Another says, 'I'm a full-blown musical.'"

"She struck a chord in me," explained Ackermann of Jessie Fremont, the heroine of Stand-off at Bear Valley, part of the Ackermann Sampler coming to the Western Stage. "I'd read books about her and her letters, and received a three-dimensional view of her. Jessie was married to pathmarker John Charles Fremont, one of California's first senators. She entertained the members of the Constitutional Convention, and tried to keep Monterey free of slavery."

As playwright-in-residence for the Western Stage, Ackermann received multiple opinions on her Jessie Fremont drama and other works, opinions she said she actively sought and appreciated.

"I wanted a theater home, so I went and talked to Tom (Humphrey), managing artistic director for the Western Stage. We evolved this position. He organized a seminar with the acting company last spring, and the company read six of my plays. (Ensemble member) George Berry suggested I turn my 'Jessie' play around and make the last sequence first," the playwright said.

Ackermann said that through such readings and commentaries, she was able to learn what portions of a piece were superfluous, what needed clarification and when to start over.

Her position as playwright-in-residence pays a stipend, but Ackermann said she is really working to glean comments and see her works produced on stage.

"I really need a theater home. It's hard for me to work with no thought of potential staging," she said.

Ackermann's A Pride of Heroes, "candid celebrations of historic women," was produced locally and by the National Festival of Women's Theatre in Santa Cruz. A sometime college instructor, Ackermann instigated "Pep Up Your Playgoing," a Monterey Peninsula College program that promoted dialogue between theater-goers and representatives from the multi-faceted local theater community. Audience members met not only local actors, but also critics, writers, stagehands and other behind-the-scenes voices.

The playwright also has other projects in the works. She is writing a play with music, Early Americans, which focuses on New England in the early 1600s. The play embraces multiple cultures, striving to express the emotions not only of the colonists but of the British and Native Americans as well.

She also has a proposal out to a theater in San Diego where she may be able to continue playwright-in-residence status.

"I may live there part of the year. San Diego is fast becoming one of the most exciting theater centers there is," she said.

Ackermann's search for a stable theater home does not discount her love of the Monterey Peninsula, she added.

"This is a very supportive, helpful, warm community generally," Ackermann said. "As I think back, I will miss it. It's a belonging place."

Dance faculty members showcased at college

The Monterey Peninsula College Dance Department will present its annual Faculty Dance Concert on the MPC main stage at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, Nov. 6-8.

Guest choreographer for the performance is Kathleen Knapp of Los Angeles, who has choreographed for stage, TV and music videos. She just finished working on "Zoobly Zoo," a children's TV series starring Ben Vereen. Local choreographer and performer Frank Quilantang will join Knapp in jazz dancing.

New MPC instructor Tito Somba will perform African dance.

Local performer and staff member Janet Butler, who has appeared in local theater and night clubs, will do her specialty — tap dancing.

For modern dance, P.E.

Division Chair Dawn Sare and Walter White team up. White, an instructor of dance at MPC, has also toured with Tandy Beal and various companies that have taken him as far as Australia and New Zealand. He also performs a one man show and has appeared on the peninsula.

Both students and faculty will perform. The show is in the MPC Main Theatre. Tickets are $5 and $4 at the door.

Veterans of historic 'Flying Tigers' squad will visit Carmel gallery

TEN MEMBERS of the World War II American Volunteer Group, the Flying Tigers, will attend a Saturday, Nov. 8 reception at GWS Galleries in Carmel. The gathering in their honor celebrates the publication of 'Next Time Get 'Em All', a signed and numbered art print based on a painting by William S. Phillips.

Phillips' painting depicts Squadron Leader Bob Neale and his wingman W.E. Bartling during a diving attack on a group of Ki-21 bombers. Only one of the 10 Ki-21s made a safe return home. Upon hearing of the feat — the first for the Flying Tigers — General Chennault was heard to exclaim, "Next time, get 'em all!"

GWS Galleries is located at 26390 Carmel Rancho Lane near the Barnyard, Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road, Carmel.

Lucio Sollazzi originals featured at Zantman

LUCIO SOLLAZZI'S newest collection of paintings, opening Saturday, Nov. 8 at Zantman Art Galleries in Carmel, resembles a far-flung Mediterranean tour.

The public is invited to attend the opening reception, scheduled 4 to 7 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 8 at the Sixth Avenue and Mission Street Zantman location. There is a second Zantman Art Gallery on Sixth Avenue in Carmel.

Peking glass subject of illustrated lecture

The Oriental Art Society of the Monterey Peninsula will present at its monthly meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 11 an illustrated lecture on Peking glass, one of the least-known of the collectible oriental arts. Anna Beck, local resident and collector of Peking glass, will give the lecture, which will be illustrated with slides.

Glass has been known in China since the Chou period (1121-255 B.C.), but the glass commonly referred to as Peking glass has been a Chinese art form only since the 17th century.

Few examples of the art from that early period exist, even in museums.

The meeting will take place in the community room of the Crossroads, Rio Road off Highway 1, Carmel. Refreshments will be served at 7:30 p.m. with the program to begin at 8. The public is invited as guests of the society.

'Amber Waves' represent nuclear warheads

A sculptural exhibit, "Amber Waves of Grain," is a one-for-one ceramic representation of the 35,000 warheads, submarines and planes in the nuclear arsenal of the United States. It can be viewed 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the Monterey Custom House Plaza Nov. 12, and is sponsored by Monterey Peninsula Beyond War.

Created by Denver artist Barbara Donachy, "Amber Waves of Grain" includes 32,580 cones each representing approximately 31,000 nuclear warheads, 1,600 missiles, 37 submarines and 322 airplanes. The cones are set in a 5,000 square foot area in a pattern of parallel waves creating a visual paradox, at once beautiful and horrifying to see.

In 1982, Barbara Donachy and her husband, Andy Bardwell were travelling in Europe. They were asked a lot of questions about the nuclear policies of the United States and found they couldn't answer them. When they returned home, they began research and collected information from sources such as the Pentagon and the Center of Defense Informa-

With Bardwell, a mathematician and statistician, Donachy began to translate the information into visual terms. They worked with 70 volunteers for 8,000 work hours and used 200 castings, 53 molds and four tons of clay to produce

"Amber Waves of Grain."

"Amber Waves of Grain," has been instrumental in helping spectators confront the enormity of war and begin to ask some fundamental questions about our future as citizens in the nuclear age.

USING CERAMIC cones, Denver artist Barbara Donachy represents the 35,000 warheads, submarines and planes in the nuclear arsenal of the United States. The exhibit continues through Tuesday, Nov. 11 at the Curtom House Plaza, Monterey.

High schoolers' art exhibited

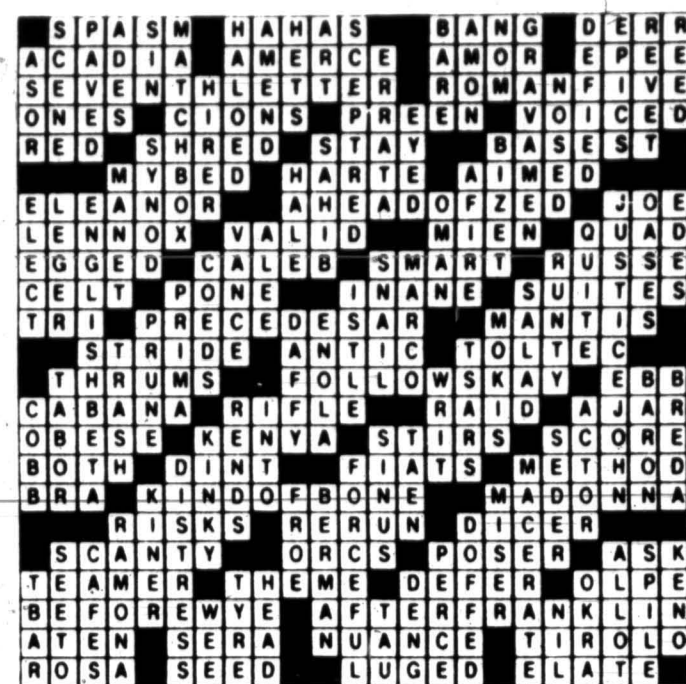

A mixed-media art exhibit featuring works by Monterey Peninsula high school students opens with a reception 2 to 4:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 8.

The art will be on display 2 to 4:30 p.m. Wednesdays through Saturdays and by appointment at the Cherry Foundation gallery, Fourth Avenue and Guadalupe Street, Carmel. The exhibit continues through Saturday, Nov. 29.

The Cherry Foundation is a non-profit organization that supports the experimental arts, sciences and education. One of its objectives is to sponsor young or little known artists, and this exhibit will give the community a chance to see the talent of young residents.

Lady Liberty restoration explained

A COMPREHENSIVE exhibit on the restoration of the Statue of Liberty, entitled "Restoring Liberty and Ellis Island: The Architect's Role," will be on display Monday, Nov. 10 through 17 at the Monterey Conference Center, located on One Portola Plaza, Monterey. The exhibit is provided courtesy of the California Council, The American Institute of Architects (CCAIA), with assistance from the Monterey Bay Chapter AIA.

"Restoring Liberty" graphically portrays the restoration of America's most popular monument in 28 panels of photographs, diagrams and plans. The display gives a unique insight into the work done by the restoration architects and shows how they gave new life to the sculpture. It also shows the design of the visitor transportation system and the new museum within the fort at the statue's base.

The display will also be available for viewing on Friday and Saturday Nov. 7 and 8 at the Hyatt Regency Conference Center during the CCAIA Annual Conference. The display coincides with a program on the Statue of Liberty Restoration by Richard Seth Hayden, AIA, of Swanke Hayden Connell Architects in New York. Hayden will give a public program on the restoration, at 4 p.m., Saturday, Nov. 8 in the Regency Ballroom of the Hyatt Regency Monterey, One Old Golf Course Road.

Richard Hayden's program and the Statue of Liberty display are sponsored by the following California agents of Design Professional Insurance Company: R.D. Crowell Insurance Agency; Dealey, Renton & Associates; Robson, Cavnagac & Associates Insurance Brokers; and Lundbert & Associates Insurance Agency, Inc. The Statue of Liberty display is an exhibition organized and circulated by The American Institute of Architects Foundation with support from Swanke Hayden Connell and Beyer Blinder Belle/Notter Finegold & Alexander, Inc.

'Cajun' film showing aids festival

THE DREAM Theatre will host a special brunch and premiere showing of the highly acclaimed film Belizaire The Cajun starring Armand Assante, beginning at 11:30 a.m. Sunday, Nov. 9, to benefit the Monterey Film Festival (Feb. 5-8, 1987), according to Executive Director David Bean.

The film, a heartwarming story set in 1859 in the Bayou country of Louisiana, documents the tension that exploded between the Cajuns and their Anglo-Saxon neighbors.

Movie critics around the country have praised the film. Heuwell Tircuit of the San Francisco Chronicle called it "A masterpiece," giving it the highest four-star rating. Chicago Sun-Times critic Roger Ebert said

"A wonderful movie!" and Tom Sabulis, Dallas Times-Herald said of Armand Assante, "A magnetic, star-making performance."

The Dream Theatre has donated the facilities for the showing. The Cajun Brunch will open at 11:30 a.m., serving food donated by Rio Grill, Outrigger, Jimmy's American Place, Carmel Rancho Center, and Chrissies Catering, as well as wine from Monterey Vineyard. The premiere screening of the film, courtesy of Skouras Pictures, is at 1 p.m.

Donation to the special event is $10 for festival members and $15 for non-members. Tickets are available at the Dream Theatre at 301 Prescott, Center Stage Ticketing, Bookworks in Pacific Grove, and Do-Re-Mi stores in Carmel. For further information call 372-6993 or 372-1331.

Model railroad show depicts miniature world

A free model railroad show arrives Friday through Sunday, Nov. 7-9, at Del Monte Shopping Center, Highway 1 at Soledad Drive, Monterey, in celebration of National Railroad Month.

Operating model railroads which range from N scale to LGB size will be on display in a room to the east of the Bank of America office in the center. Show hours are 6 to 9 p.m. Friday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

The weekend show will also include a display of railroad artifacts, videos of model railroads and an exhibit of Lionel Trains.

Movie assists Alzheimer's Disease programs

A film titled There Were Times, Dear starring Shirley Jones and Len Cariou, will screen at the Steinbeck Forum, Monterey Conference Center, at 7 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 6. The program is a benefit for the Alzheimer's Day Care Resource Center in Seaside.

The film, which was originally written as a documentary feature about Alzheimer's Disease, tells the story of how one family learns to cope with the disease.

The event will be emceed by George Fenneman, former host of The Groucho Marx Show, who is also a member of the national chapter of the Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association. Speakers will present information about research and caregiving at the event.

Tickets for the fund-raiser are $10 and will be sold at the door.

For more information about the event or the Alzheimer's Day Care Resource Center, call Central Coast Visiting Nurse Association at 375-9537.

Author's 'unbirthday' reflects R.L. Stevenson in a generous mood

THE TRADITIONAL Robert Louis Stevenson Unbirthday celebration arrives Thursday, Nov. 13 at the Stevenson House in Monterey.

Each year visiting school children hear the story of the birthday celebration Robert Louis Stevenson gave to his young friend, Annie Ide. Annie, daughter of Stevenson's friend, Judge Ide, had been born on Christmas day and so felt denied a proper celebration and attention.

Stevenson had reached an age where he felt no further need of a birthday, so he bequeathed his birthday to Annie, a happy solution for them both.

This year also marks the 100th anniversary of the publication of The Strange Story of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. This Stevenson classic is a story of madness and death due to what could be called misuse and experimentation with drugs.

This year the Unbirthday Party will take place 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Entrance to the Stevenson House in Monterey is from Houston or Munras streets. The party is sponsored by the Old Monterey Preservation Society and the Monterey State Historic Park. For more information, call 649-7118 or 649-7109.

'Big bazaar' has got the goods

Gifts, including yule jewels, collectibles, gourmet goodies and an art gallery are all part of "The Big Bazaar", arriving Saturday, Nov. 8 at the First United Methodist Church, Sunset and 17 Mile Drive, Pacific Grove.

Admission is free to the sale, and lunch will be served in the country kitchen. Bazaar hours are 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

New exhibits open at Fort Ord gallery

Pottery by Bill Abbott and porcelain and pastel works by Ellie Fogg will be exhibited jointly throughout November at the Fort Ord Arts and Crafts Gallery.

An artists' reception is planned 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 9. The gallery is located in building 2250 at Fort Ord. Hours are 1 to 10 p.m. Monday through Wednesday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Sunday and holidays. Visitors must obtain a pass at the main gate.

Kids' Saturday Night Out returns

Kids' Saturday Night Out is back at the Monterey Youth Center. This special evening program is offered every Saturday from 6 to 11 p.m.

Children will enjoy supervised activities such as active games, arts and crafts, ping pong, pool and movies. The program is designed for children ages 6 to 12. Fee is $6 for residents and $7 for non-residents. For more information or to register, call 646-3873.

Men discuss violence alternatives

Monterey County Men's Alternatives to Violence continues its training program for non-professional peer counselors at the YMCA of the Monterey Peninsula.

Following the training program, peer counselors will volunteer their time to provide information and support to other men who want to learn alternatives to their violent behavior. Currently, peer counselors work in teams leading weekly groups in Monterey and Salinas.

Details on the training are available from the YMCA, 373-4166.
